

OPTIMISING THE TRANSITION FROM HOME TO HOSPITAL

ENHANCING COMMUNICATION BETWEEN CARE PARTNERS TO IMPROVE THE QUALITY OF DEMENTIA CARE IN HOSPITAL

Aim: To improve quality of care through enhanced communication between individuals with dementia (IWD), unpaid carers, and health professionals during unscheduled admissions to the hospital from home and attendances at A&E

Objectives

- 1) To investigate what is currently considered "good practice" during the period of transition from home to hospital?
- 2) To understand the current experiences of communication at time of unscheduled admission to hospital?
- 3) To use collaborative design approaches in the development of an admissions support package

Twitter: @Courtneyjshaw1

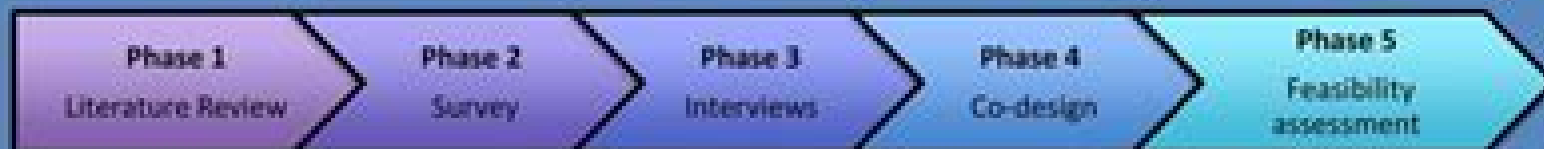

Background: Dementia affects both receptive and expressive communication, meaning IWD may need additional support during hospital admissions. Current research shows that IWD stay in hospital longer, have worse medical outcomes, and experience poor care more frequently than their peers.

Methods: Mixed methods research using both qualitative and quantitative approaches. Intervention design informed by principles of Asset Based Problem Solving

What is Asset based problem solving? Asset based problem solving is an approach which recognizes and values a combination of human, social, and physical capital which exists within an organisation and uses that as a starting point to create solutions based on what people value most. It is underpinned by "attitudes and values related to personal and collective empowerment"¹

Angela Danzi

From Home To Hospital:

From Home to Hospital Angela Danzi, 1997 Employing seventy eight in depth interviews with Italian and Jewish American women this study presents the subjective voices of women caught up in an important social change the pre 1940 transformation of childbirth Italian women were more varied in their choices some were more likely to prefer home birth with a midwife while others used a hospital clinic or private physician A significant number moved from home to hospital over their birth careers while nearly all Jewish women selected physician assisted hospital birth These differences are explained by looking at the structure and context of women s family and friendship networks and their personal links to varying childbirth caretakers

Oxford Textbook of Palliative Care for Children Ann Goldman, Richard Hain, Stephen Liben, 2012-05-24 The first edition of this book was the first authoritative systematic and comprehensive text to define the increasingly important and evolving specialty of paediatric palliative care It explores both the clinical aspects and the multidimensional and holistic nature of care for the dying child based on the knowledge that all human experience has a physical emotional psychological and spiritual impact The book covers ways of providing support in all of these areas both for the child families and carers recognising the importance of teamwork and taking an evidence based approach The Oxford Textbook of Palliative Care for Children is about the care of children for whom cure of their underlying disease is not possible It encompasses the physical management of symptoms such as pain and nausea as well as social issues such as accessing appropriate education emotional issues such as techniques for communication and spiritual issues such as feelings of guilt and isolation The book suggests that if we are to maintain the quality of life for a child it is essential to recognise all these dimensions and try to address them This can only be done by recognising the skills of a wide range of professionals and working together in ways that are not always intuitive to any one discipline It explores the multidimensional and holistic nature of care for the dying child Those working in paediatric palliative care recognise that all human experience has emotional psychological and spiritual impact as well as physical and this book offers the essential information needed for those involved in paediatric care to find ways of providing support in all of these areas Comprehensive in scope exhaustive in detail and definitive in authority this second edition has been thoroughly updated to cover new practices current epidemiological data and the evolving models that support the delivery of palliative medicine to children Paediatric palliative care is now developing in countries with differing health care systems and being adapted to suit individual illnesses and the varying resources and geography in different parts of the world This book is an essential resource for anyone who works with children worldwide

Health Care Comes Home National Research Council, Division of Behavioral and Social Sciences and Education, Board on Human-Systems Integration, Committee on the Role of Human Factors in Home Health Care, 2011-07-22 In the United States health care devices technologies and practices are rapidly moving into the home The factors driving this migration include the costs of health care the growing numbers of older adults the increasing prevalence of chronic conditions and diseases and improved survival rates for people with those conditions and diseases and a wide range of technological innovations The health care that results varies considerably in its safety effectiveness and efficiency as well as in its quality and cost Health Care Comes Home reviews the state of current knowledge and practice about many aspects of health care in residential settings and explores the short and long term effects of emerging trends and technologies By evaluating existing systems the book identifies design problems and imbalances between technological system demands and the capabilities of users Health Care Comes Home recommends critical steps to improve health care in the home The book's recommendations cover the regulation of health care technologies proper training and preparation for people who provide in home care and how existing housing can be modified and new accessible housing can be better designed for residential health care The book also identifies knowledge gaps in the field and how these can be addressed through research and development initiatives Health Care Comes Home lays the foundation for the integration of human health factors with the design and implementation of home health care devices technologies and practices The book describes ways in which the Agency for Healthcare Research and Quality AHRQ the U S Food and Drug Administration FDA and federal housing agencies can collaborate to improve the quality of health care at home It is also a valuable resource for residential health care providers and caregivers

ECSCW 2009: Proceedings of the 11th European Conference on Computer Supported Cooperative Work, 7-11 September 2009, Vienna, Austria Ina Wagner, Hilda Tellioglu, Ellen Balka, Carla Simone, Luigina Ciolfi, 2009-08-19 This volume presents the proceedings of ECSCW 09 the 11th European Conference on Computer Supported Cooperative Work Each conference offers an occasion to critically review our research field which has been multidisciplinary and committed to high scientific standards both theoretical and methodological from its beginning These proceedings represent discussions and contributions to ongoing challenges One challenge comes from emerging new technologies connected to social computing gaming as well as applications supporting citizen participation in their communities As boundaries between home and work erode with the increased movement of work into home environments and new applications further blur the once separate conceptions of work and leisure our intellectual community faces challenges in the ways we think about and study work Other challenges result from transformations of the world of work itself and the role of IT in these They have been taken up in in depth studies of design practice software development and manufacturing as well as in the growing body of research on health care contexts and applications Finally there is the question of what is the European perspective in our community and whether it is worthwhile to anchor our research more firmly in such a perspective Of high relevance to our field is the strong grounding of technology development in an understanding of human activity The nineteen full papers four short papers and one discussion paper selected for this conference deal with and reflect on some of these challenges thus representing the lively debate currently ongoing in our field of research
