From Ice Breaker To Missile Boat:

From Ice-Breaker to Missile Boat Moshe Tzalel, 2000-06-30 As a small nation in a hostile region Israel has made defense a top priority Tzalel takes a critical look at the naval branch of Israel's defense forces to consider its history its performance and its overall importance to maintaining national security From a motley collection of illegal immigrant ships operated prior to the birth of the state the Israelis have since the 1960s established a modern navy However Tzalel argues the modernization and expansion of the Israeli navy has been driven more by an excess of funds and the lack of clearly defined priorities than by any real necessity Like most small countries Israel has no need to command the sea during peace or in wartime The author examines each step of naval development by direct correlation to the perceived need for each new phase and the circumstances that led naval and military leaders to make specific choices and he discusses the benefits of these choices on the field of battle He hopes to map the complex relationship between the navy men the Israeli government and public sentiment Although the nation has managed to create a new and impressive class of warship the Sa'ar FAC M and its larger derivatives Tzalel contends that the military logic behind such naval construction was faulty and that the nation's submarine flotilla constitutes a sheer waste of monetary and human resources

The Military Effectiveness of Post-Colonial States Pradeep Barua, 2013-04-15 Current military historiography has a tendency to portray the military effectiveness of non western post colonial states in broad generalized stereotypes This monograph examines the militaries of Nigeria Argentina Egypt and India in times of crisis to challenge these assumptions The book shows that despite having broad similarities each of these states had unique characteristics that impacted their military effectiveness in different ways These key variables included the military institutions maturity and skill sets the availability and management of human and material resources and the quality of both civil and military leadership

Trial Mark E. Grotelueschen, 2000-11-30 Artillery proved to be the greatest killer on the Western front in World War I and the use and misuse of artillery was certainly a determining factor in the war's outcome. While many books explore the artillery forces and employment of the European powers, this is the first study to examine artillery employment in the American Expeditionary Force. Grotelueschen follows one AEF division through its entire World War I experience from preliminary training to each of its battles in France. This approach allows for great investigative depth and an opportunity to explore the implementation of doctrinal changes throughout the war. While accounts of the AEF written in the immediate aftermath of the war praised it as a great fighting machine, most scholars have concluded that the AEF was a flawed combat force. This study demonstrates that despite significant flaws and weaknesses, especially in artillery doctrine and employment, at least some AEF divisions did attain effective fighting ability. American divisions were most successful when carrying out limited set-piece attacks, efforts that ran counter to approved US Army and AEF doctrine at the time. Historians will find this unique approach to the study of division-level strengths and weaknesses to be useful in making more accurate and complete comparisons among the great armies of the Western Front. General Foreign Policy Series, 1953 The Economics of U.S. Foreign Policy Robert E. Asher, 1953 International Traffic in Arms United States. Department of State, 1953 Military Innovation in Small States Michael Raska, 2015-11-06 This book provides a comprehensive assessment of the global diffusion of the Revolution in Military Affairs (RMA) and its impact on military innovation trajectories in small states. Although the Revolution in Military Affairs (RMA) concept has enjoyed significant academic attention, the varying paths and patterns of military innovation in divergent strategic settings have been overlooked. This book seeks to rectify this gap by addressing the broad puzzle of how the global diffusion of RMA-oriented military innovation, the process of international transmission, communication, and interaction of RMA-related military concepts, organizations, and technologies has shaped the paths, patterns, and scope of military innovation of selected small states. In a reverse mode, how have selected small states influenced the conceptualization and transmission of the RMA theory, processes, and debate? Using Israel, Singapore, and South Korea as case studies, this book argues that RMA-oriented military innovation paths in small states indicate predominantly evolutionary trajectories, albeit with varying patterns resulting from the confluence of three sets of variables: 1) the level of strategic, organizational, and operational adaptability in responding to shifts in the geostrategic and regional security environment; 2) the ability to identify, anticipate, exploit, and sustain niche military innovation; select conceptual, organizational, and technological innovation intended to enhance the military's ability to prepare for fight and win wars; and 3) strategic culture. While the book represents relevant empirical cases for testing the validity of the RMA diffusion hypotheses from a policy-oriented perspective, this book argues that these case studies offer lessons learned in coping with the security and defence management challenges posed by military innovation in general. This book will be of much interest for students of military innovation, strategic studies, defence studies, Asian politics, Middle Eastern politics, and security studies in general.

Creating an American Lake Hal M. Friedman, 2000-11-30 Many historians of U S foreign relations think of the post World War II period as a time when the United States as an anti colonial power advocated collective security through the United Nations and denounced territorial aggrandizement Yet between 1945 and 1947 the United States violated its wartime rhetoric and instead sought an imperial solution to its postwar security problems in East Asia by acquiring unilateral control of the western Pacific Islands and dominating influence throughout the entire Pacific Basin This detailed study examines American foreign policy from the beginning of the Truman Administration to the implementation of Containment in the summer and fall of 1947 As a case study of the Truman Administration s Early Cold War efforts it explores pre Containment policy in light of U S security concerns vis a vis the Pearl Harbor Syndrome The American pursuit of a secure Pacific Basin was inconsistent at the time with its foreign policy toward other areas of the world Thus the consolidation of power in this region was an exception to the avowed goal of a multilateral response to the policies of the Soviet Union This example of national or strategic security went much further than simple military control it included the cultural assimilation of the indigenous population and the unilateral exclusion of all other powers Analyzing traditional archival records in a new light Friedman also investigates the persisting American notions of a Westward moving frontier that stretches beyond North American territorial bounds

Military Aspects of the Israeli-Arab Conflict Louis Williams, 1975-01-01 The Arab Israeli conflict is fraught with political complexity It entails long standing entrenched views on the part of all the participants direct and indirect and is heavily charged with emotion It is a subject of great political and military actuality The Middle East is fast becoming a testing ground for modern weapons systems and for modern conventional war doctrines a recent example being the Yom Kippur War Most publications articles papers books on the war were produced while sentiments were still high and the armies still formulating their conclusions. Confusion, controversy, and emotions eclipsed clarity. An international symposium was held two years after the war to objectively debate the war, its lessons, and the Middle East conflict in general. This book contains all of the speeches and papers presented at that symposium plus a record of three related events. These were question and answer sessions with Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin, Foreign Minister Yigal Allon, and Jerusalem Mayor Teddy Kollek. These interviews, along with the symposium, contribute to an understanding of the Middle East conflict and of the thinking and personalities of key figures in Israeli life and politics.

The Formative Influences, Theories, and Campaigns of the Archduke Carl of Austria Lee W. Eysturlid, 2000-08-30 Archduke Carl of Austria lived during a time fractured by the collision of revolution and reaction, and he drew upon the French Revolution as the source for most of his experiences as a field commander and theoretician. He firmly believed that there were certain uncontradictable truths that governed warfare. This first English language study of his theoretical writings offers a new perspective on understanding the mind of this military theorist through study of his intellectual background. The archduke's military career lasted from 1792 to 1809, and his serious work as a military theoretician and historian ranged from the 1790s to the 1830s. Eysturlid explores Archduke Carl's formative military education and experiences by examining the readings that formed the basis of his education and the instructors that exercised an influence over him. Archduke Carl was a definite product of his Enlightenment education and a diehard proponent of limited warfare. Chapters look carefully at Carl's major works on military strategy and tactics and observe in detail his actions and efforts during the 1796 and 1809 campaigns. Two historiographical chapters provide valuable contextual material about this poorly understood historical figure.

Native vs. Settler Thomas G. Mitchell, 2000-08-30 Settler-native conflicts in Northern Ireland, Israel, Palestine, and South Africa serve as excellent comparative cases as three areas linked to Britain where insurgencies occurred during roughly the same period.

Important factors considered are settler parties settler mythology the role of native fighters settler terror the role of liberal parties and the conduct of the war by security forces Settlers and natives in each area share similar attitudes liberal parties operate in similar fashions and there are common explanations for the formation of splinter liberation groups However according to Mitchell the key difference between the cases lies in the behavior of British security forces in comparison to South African and Israeli forces Mitchell s chapter on liberal parties includes an independent account of the Progressive Federal Party of South Africa the official parliamentary opposition from 1977 to 1987 along with the first major published account of the Alliance Party in Northern Ireland His study of splinter group formation contains the first major account since 1964 of the Pan Africanist Party of Azania including its insurgency campaign in the 1980s and 1990s Mitchell also contrasts behavior among the Inkatha Party and Labour Party in South Africa with the Social Democrat and Labour Party in Northern Ireland

Defence Industries in the 21st Century Çağlar Kurç, Richard A. Bitzinger, Stephanie G. Neuman, 2021-05-13

Defence Industries in the 21st Century explores the transformation in the global defence industrial production through examining the interaction between international and domestic factors With the global defence industry and arms market likely continue to expand and mature the ways in which this progression could influence international politics remain obscure In practice as the contents of this book show the defence industrial bases and arms export policies of emerging states display significant variance This variance is the result of a unique balance between domestic and international factors that has shaped the defence industrialisation behaviour and policies of the less industrialised states One of the most important conclusions of the book is that the interplay between domestic and international factors clearly influences the variation in the emerging states defence industrialisation policies as well as their success or failure While international factors create opportunities they also limit the options available to emerging economies Domestic factors also play an important role by shaping the policy choices of the states decision makers Exploring the balance between international and domestic factors and the ways in which they influence defence industrialisation in emerging states Defence Industries in the 21st Century will be of great interest to scholars of Defence Industries Arms Manufacturing and Defence Strategic and Security Studies more generally The chapters were originally published in Defence Studies Comparative Strategy and All Azimuth
