Novel and Romance Hubert McDermott,1989-06-18 McDermott argues that the novels of the 18th century should be seen as part of an age old European tradition going back to Homer rather than as a unique English event He examines European fictional narratives and romance and their influence on authors such as Richardson and Fielding

Device and Composition in the Greek Epic Cycle Benjamin Sammons,2017 From a corpus of Greek epics known in antiquity as the Epic Cycle six poems dealt with the same Trojan War mythology as the Homeric poems Though they are now lost these poems were much read and much discussed in ancient times not only for their content but for their mysterious relationship with the more famous works attributed to Homer In Device and Composition in the Greek Epic Cycle Benjamin Sammons shows that these lost poems belonged compositionally to essentially the same tradition as the Homeric poems He demonstrates that various compositional devices well known from the Homeric epics were also fundamental to the narrative construction of these later works Yet while the cyclic poets constructed their works using the same traditional devices as Homer they used these to different ends and with different results Sammons argues that the essential difference between cyclic and Homeric poetry lies not in the fundamental building blocks from which they are constructed but in the scale of these components relative to the overall construction of poems This sheds important light on the early history of epic as a genre since it is likely that these devices originally developed to provide large scale structure to shorter poems and have been put to quite different use in the composition of the monumental Homeric epics Along the way Sammons sheds new light on the overall form of lost cyclic epics and on the meaning and context of the few surviving verse fragments

Rees,2022-01-13 This volume sheds new light on the experience of ancient Greek warfare by identifying and examining three fundamental transitions undergone by the classical Athenian hoplite as a result of his military service his departure to war his homecoming from war having survived and his homecoming from war having died As a conscript a man regularly called upon by his city state to serve in the battle lines and perform his citizen duty the most common military experience of the hoplite was one of transition he was departing to or returning from war on a regular basis especially during extended periods of conflict Scholarship has focused primarily on the experience of the hoplite after his return with a special emphasis on his susceptibility to Post Traumatic Stress Disorder PTSD but the moments of transition themselves have yet to be explored in detail Taking each in turn Owen Rees examines the transitions from two sides from within the domestic environment as a member of an oikos and from within the military environment as a member of the army This analysis presents a new template for each and effectively maps the experience of the hoplite as he moves between his domestic and military duties This allows us to reconstruct the effects of war more fully and to identify moments with the potential for a traumatic impact on the individual
