James Moran, 2021-12-16 Modernists and the Theatre examines how six key modernists who are best known as poets and novelists engaged with the realm of theatre and performance Drawing on a wealth of unfamiliar archival material and fresh readings of neglected documents James Moran demonstrates how these literary figures interacted with the playhouse exploring W B Yeats's earliest playwriting Ezra Pound's onstage acting the links between James Joyce's and D H Lawrence's sense of drama T S Eliot's thinking about theatrical popularity and the feminist politics of Virginia Woolf's small scale theatrical experimentation While these modernists often made hostile comments about drama this volume highlights how the writers were all repeatedly drawn to the form While Yeats and Pound were fascinated by the controlling aspect of theatre other authors felt inspired by theatre as a democratic forum in which dissenting voices could be heard Some of these modernists used theatre to express and explore identities that had previously been sidelined in the public forum including the working class mining communities of Lawrence's plays the sexually unconventional and non binary gender expressions of Joyce's fiction and the female experience that Woolf sought to represent and discuss in terms of theatrical performance These writers may be known primarily for creating non dramatic texts but this book demonstrates the importance of the theatre to the activities of these authors and shows how a sense of the theatrical repeatedly motivated the wider thinking and writing of six major figures in literary history Hollywood Musicals Nominated for Best Picture Frederick G.

and comments from critics French Musical Culture and the Coming of Sound Cinema Hannah Lewis, 2018-09-05

The transition from silent to synchronized sound film was one of the most dramatic transformations in cinema's history as it radically changed the technology practices and aesthetics of filmmaking within a few short years. In France, debates about sound cinema were fierce and widespread. In French Musical Culture and the Coming of Sound Cinema, author Hannah Lewis argues that the debates about sound film resonated deeply within French musical culture of the early 1930s and conversely that discourses surrounding a range of French musical styles and genres shaped audiovisual cinematic experiments during the transition to sound. Lewis's book focuses on many of the most prominent directors and screenwriters of the period from Luis Buñuel to Jean Vigo as well as experiments found in lesser-known films. Additionally, Lewis examines how early sound film portrayed the diverse soundscape of early 1930s France as filmmakers drew from the music hall, popular chanson, modernist composition, opera, and operetta and explored the importance of musical machines to depict and to shape French audiovisual culture. In this light, the author discusses the contributions of well-known composers for film alongside more popular music hall styles, all of which had a voice within the heterogeneous soundtrack of French sound cinema. By delving into this fascinating developmental period of French cinematic history, Lewis encourages readers to challenge commonly held assumptions about how genres, media, and artistic forms relate to one another and how these relationships are renegotiated during moments of technological change.
