examines the theme of memory in Irish literature and culture against the theoretical background of the philosophical discourse of modernity. Offering a wide range of perspectives, this volume examines a plurality of representations past and present of memory both public and private and the intersection between collective memory and individual in modern Ireland. Also explored is the relation between memory and identity national and private as well as questions of subjectivity and the construction of the self. Given Ireland's tragic past and its long history of colonisation, it is inevitable that various aspects of memory in terms of nationality, post-colonialism and politics also have bearing on this study. The volume is divided into five sections, each of which examines one broadly defined aspect of memory. The introductory section focuses on memory and history and is followed by sections on memory and autobiography, place identity and memory in the work of novelist John Banville. Within each section, the individual writers engage in a fruitful dialogue with each other and with the approaches of such theorists as Arendt, Husserl, Merleau-Ponty, Ricoeur and Baudrillard.
