Farms And Estates A Conveyancing Handbook:

Farms and Estates Christopher Jessel,1999 The only book devoted to this subject Farms and Estates A Conveyancing Handbook is written by one of the leading agricultural lawyers in the UK It guides you through the complexities of advising on the sale and purchase of rural land a process that frequently raises technical problems which differ greatly from standard conveyancing transactions For example large areas of rural land are still unregistered so boundaries and title are harder to determine There are complex issues raised by quotas under EU agricultural policy There are also countless other common obstacles such as the existence of conservation areas septic tanks and ancient monuments all of which need to be thoroughly investigated if problems and delays are to be avoided This book provides a practical explanation on these and a wealth of other issues It highlights what the conveyancer must look for how to ensure that searches and enquiries are answered accurately and provides advice on the problems which arise out of dealing with existing tenants The author s lengthy experience in advising rural landowners also ensures that the advice given in the book is informed by a deep understanding of the peculiarities of the farming business Includes 18 specialist precedents a collection of contract model clauses and also checklists for the buyer and the seller
