From a College Window
Arthur Christopher Benson, 2018-08-14 From a College Window by Arthur Christopher Benson. I have lately come to perceive that the one thing which gives value to any piece of art, whether it be book or picture or music, is that subtle and evasive thing which is called personality. No amount of labour or zest, even of accomplishment, can make up for the absence of this quality. It must be an almost wholly instinctive thing, I believe. Of course, the mere presence of personality in a work of art is not sufficient, because the personality revealed may be lacking in charm, and charm again is an instinctive thing. No artist can set out to capture charm; he will toil all the night and take nothing but what every artist can and must aim at is to have a perfectly sincere point of view. He must take his chance as to whether his point of view is an attractive one, but sincerity is the one indispensable thing. It is useless to take opinions on trust, to retail them, to adopt them; they must be formed, created, truly felt. The work of a sincere artist is almost certain to have some value; the work of an insincere artist is of its very nature worthless.
