Wrong? Mary Harper,2012-02-09 Somalia is a failed state representing a threat to itself its neighbours and the wider world

In recent years it has become notorious for the piracy off its coast and the rise of Islamic extremism opening it up as a new southern front in the war on terror At least that is how it is inevitably portrayed by politicians and in the media Mary Harper presents the first comprehensive account of the chaos into which the country has descended and the United States renewed involvement there In doing so Harper argues that viewing Somalia through the prism of al Qaeda risks further destabilizing the country and the entire Horn of Africa while also showing that though the country may be a failed state it is far from being a failed society In reality alternative forms of business justice education and local politics have survived and even flourished Provocative in its analysis Harper shows that until the international community starts to get it right the consequences will be devastating not just for Somalia but for the world Andindilile: The Anglophone Literary-Linguistic Co ,2023-01-10 Michael Andindilile in The Anglophone Literary Linguistic Continuum English and Indigenous Languages in African Literary Discourse interrogates Obi Wali s 1963 prophecy that continued use of former colonial languages in the production of African literature could only lead to sterility as African literatures can only be written in indigenous African languages In doing so Andindilile critically examines selected novels of Achebe of Nigeria Ngugi of Kenya Gordimer of South Africa and Farah of Somalia and shows that when we pay close attention to what these authors represent about their African societies and the way they integrate African languages values beliefs and cultures we can discover what constitutes the Anglophone African literary linguistic continuum This continuum can be defined as variations in the literary usage of English in African literary discourse with the language serving as the base to which writers add variations inspired by indigenous languages beliefs cultures and sometimes nation specific experiences Literary Crossroads Blessing Diala-Ogamba, Elaine Sykes, 2014-11-06 This book explores the different ways women have been liberating themselves from the shackles of patriarchy and cultural laws that inhibit their independence and freedom to show that women are also contributing meaningfully to society Women have worked to attain freedom through speaking out writing memoirs fiction plays poetry and essays The creative experiences of women are captured in this book thus fulfilling the book s aim to give women voices to air their views and show that they are effectual members of society The book examines the roles played by patriarchy religion and socioeconomic and political systems that keep women to the background It also examines the issue of education otherhood marginalization cultural imposition and the diverse positions of women in local and international affairs The book testifies that women s literature and the stories of women all over the world can be appreciated and viewed from different perspectives because of the diverse cultural environment in which women find themselves This confirms that the issue of marginalization suppression and oppression of women are on going problems in different societies around the world
