Government And Public Trust:

OECD Public Governance Reviews Trust and Public Policy How Better Governance Can Help Rebuild Public Trust OECD, 2017-03-27 This report examines the influence of trust on policy making and explores some of the steps governments can take to strengthen public trust

Advancing Excellence and Public Trust in Government Caleb M. Clark, Don-Terry Veal, 2011-05-31 Over the last four decades the public trust in government in the United States has fallen dramatically due to a perfect storm of contributing factors such as a seemingly never ending string of political scandals partisan polarization and toxic attack politics and miserable failures to respond to natural disasters or the devastation of the Great Recession This book contains the academic presentations that were made at the Symposium on Advancing Excellence and Public Trust in Government that was held at the National Press Club in Washington D C on September 17 2007 In particular the Symposium focused upon how improving transparency in governmental operations could be used to assuage some of the popular doubts about and hostility toward America's governments There was certainly a very broad consensus at the Symposium that transparency in government is extremely desirable needs to be improved will bring reform and improvement to the public sector and should make a major contribution to the restoration of the public trust in the United States Indeed support for improved transparency can be found across the political spectrum as both conservatives and liberals believe that more openness in government will promote parts of their very different policy agendas Truly transparency appears to be an all American issue The discussion at the Symposium revolved around three broad themes The first concerned transparency about government operations per se such as how decisions were made and what detailed budgets are A second and somewhat broader theme concerned greater transparency of performance measures which tell us what the effects of specific policies are and how effective or efficient government agencies are Third and even more broadly some of the participants argued that general questions of governance provide the key for a renewal of public trust among our citizenry This book of presentations at the Symposium is organized into four parts based on this distinction Part I contains two challenges to America to restore the public trust Parts II to IV then cover transparency performance measures and broader issues about general governance

Trust and Confidence in Government and Public Services Sue Llewellyn, Stephen Brookes, Ann Mahon, 2013-10-28 Trust and confidence are topical issues Pundits claim that citizens trust governments and public services increasingly less identifying a powerful new erosion of confidence that in the US goes back at least to Watergate in the 1970s Recently media exposure in the UK about MP expenses has been extensive and a court case ruled in favor of publishing expense claims and against exempting MPs from the scrutiny which all citizens are subject to under freedom of information As a result revelations about everything from property speculation to bespoke duck pond houses have fueled public outcry and survey evidence shows that citizens increasingly distrust the government with public resources This book gathers together arguments and evidence to answer questions such as What is trust Can trust be boosted through regulation What role does leadership play in rebuilding trust How does trust and confidence affect public services The chapters in this collection explore these questions across several countries and different sectors of public service provision health education social services the police and the third sector The contributions offer empirical evidence about how the issues of trust and confidence differ across countries and sectors and develop ideas about how trust and confidence in government and public services may adjust in the information age Public Trust and Government Betrayal , The Federal Reserve Bank of Minneapolis presents the full text of the January 2001 staff report entitled Public Trust and Government Betrayal written by Christopher Phelan The text is available in PDF format This paper offers a simple model of government reputation that consists of characteristics of policy outcomes in less developed countries The characteristics are governments that betray public trust and public trust that is regained only gradually Government for the Future Mark A. Abramson, Daniel J. Chenok, John M. Kamensky, 2018-09-03 In recognition of its 20th anniversary The IBM Center for the Business of Government offers a retrospective of the most significant changes in government management during that period and looks forward over the next 20 years to offer alternative scenarios as to what government management might look like by the year 2040 Part I will discuss significant management improvements in the federal government over the past 20 years based in part on a crowdsourced survey of knowledgeable government officials and public administration experts in the field It will draw on themes and topics examined in the 350 IBM Center reports published over the past two decades Part II will outline alternative scenarios of how government might change over the coming 20 years The scenarios will be developed based on a series of envisioning sessions which are bringing together practitioners and academics to examine the future The scenarios will be supplemented with short essays on various topics Part II will also include essays by winners of the Center's Challenge Grant competition Challenge Grant winners will be awarded grants to identify futuristic visions of government in 2040 Contributions by Mark A Abramson David A Bray Daniel J Chenok Lee Feldman Lora Frecks Hollie Russon Gilman Lori Gordon John M Kamensky Michael J Keegan W Henry Lambright Tad McGalliard Shelley H Metzenbaum Marc Ott Sukumar Rao and Darrell M West Government at a Glance 2021 OECD, 2021-07-09 The 2021 edition includes input indicators on public finance and employment process indicators include data on institutions budgeting practices human resources management regulatory governance public procurement governance of infrastructure public sector integrity open government and digital government Outcome indicators cover core government results e g trust political efficacy inequality reduction and indicators on access responsiveness quality and satisfaction for the education health and justice sectors
