Heparin-Induced Thrombocytopenia (HIT) Maja Tomicic, 2018 Heparin induced thrombocytopenia HIT I is a severe life threatening and immunological drug reaction According to the clinical laboratory characteristics there are two types of

HIT type I HIT I and type II HIT II HIT I is the result of non immunologic direct interaction of heparin with the platelet surface Contrary HIT II is immunologically induced antibody mediated and life threatening side effect of heparin therapy often associated with thromboembolic complications All patients receiving heparin are exposed to the development of anti heparin antibodies irrespective of the heparin dosage type and method of administration HIT most commonly develops in intensive care patients dialyzed patients and cardiosurgical and orthopedic patients It commonly develops after 5 10 days of heparin therapy Platelet count decreases by more than 50% from the baseline and ranges from 20 109 L to 100 109 L In HIT II thromboembolic complications usually include deep vein thrombosis and pulmonary embolism but they also include arterial occlusion of the extremities myocardial infarction stroke and necrosis and organ damage Clinical assessment of the HIT probability using 4T s score system systematic monitoring of platelet number in heparin receiving patients and specific laboratory diagnosis of anti heparin antibodies substantially contribute to the final confirmation of the diagnosis enable timely administration of direct non heparin thrombin antagonists and reduce mortality from thromboembolic complications
