are just a few of the problems and challenges that have emerged in today's global economy. Globalization both implies and requires economic interdependence and this should bring with it a heightened sense of the interconnectedness of the participating societies. But unfortunately, as recent events indicate, rather than our having formed a global community, today's society is more fragmented than ever. In light of this, education faces some formidable new challenges. How do we prepare future citizens for the world they will live in? How do we teach future generations to embrace the paradox of accepting the value of multiculturalism despite the conflicts it has produced? How do we instill religious tolerance in a time when fundamentalism has become inextricably tied with terrorism? How do we promote economic growth in the face of overpopulation and its depletion of resources? The authors of this collection of essays explore these and related challenges and they suggest some novel ways of dealing with them.

Earthbodies Glen A. Mazis, 2002-07-11 Shows how our cultural misconceptions about the body distort its capacities and lead to personal and social ills

Art and Celebrity John A. Walker, 2002-12-20 The growing cult of the celebrity in contemporary culture is throwing up paradoxical ideas about the contradictions between high art and mass appeal and blurring the already unstable boundaries between art commodity and popular culture. This is a lively and accessible study of the phenomenon informed by a look at what happens when the serious world of art collides with celebrity. Global culture is now dominated by celebrities, some of whom like Madonna and Stallone are art collectors and some like Dennis Hopper and David Bowie are part-time artists. Walker explains how artists such as Warhol, Gavin Turk, Jeff Koons, Elizabeth Peyton, and Alison Jackson contribute to but also critique the cult of celebrity by depicting film celebrities, rock stars, and royalty in paintings and statues. Celebritisation has overtaken the art world too. Walker surveys 14 art stars of the twentieth century from Dali to Tracey Emin. He also reviews alternatives: the left-wing pantheon of figures such as Mao Che Guevara and Rosa Luxemburg and pictorial celebrations of the people.

No Citizen Left Behind Meira Levinson, 2012-04-23 While teaching at an all-Black middle school in Atlanta, Levinson realized that her students' individual self-improvement would not necessarily enable them to overcome their historical marginalization. In order to overcome their civic empowerment gap, students must learn how to reshape power relationships through public political and civic action.
