Governments Globalization And International Business:

Governments, Globalization, and International Business John H. Dunning, 1997-07-24 It is a cliché to say that we live in a globalized world in which investment flows, communications, and the operations of multinationals from all parts of the world have changed the character of the international business environment. But the easy concept of globalization poses as many questions as it answers, and it is the purpose of this book to address these challenges. In Governments, Globalization and International Business, a prestigious group of international scholars explore in detail the consequences of globalization defined as the deepening structural interdependence of the world economy. In Part 1, John Dunning, Richard Lipsey, Susan Strange, and Stephen Kobrin analyse these changes from different disciplinary perspectives and intellectual backgrounds. The basic question they address is what are the consequences of globalization on the nature, form, and level of domestic economic activity. In doing so, they also consider the increasing mobility of knowledge and information, the role of international corporations, and the sovereignty of the nation-state in the modern borderless world. In Part 2, the different experiences and policies of a number of economies are assessed in a series of country studies. These include the G7 countries as well as the developing East Asian economies, Latin America, and smaller developed countries. In the final part, John Stopford and Edward Graham stand back and look at the changing role of National and Supranational governance. In doing so, they underscore a fundamental tenet of the volume: that globalization requires national governments to re-evaluate various factors of their systemic governance. Yet, despite apparently convergent trends, they argue there are no universal prescriptions for the way governments should respond to globalization, and the policy challenge is a more complex one than merely more or less government.

International Business and Government Relations in the 21st Century Robert Grosse, 2005-09-08 Originally published in 2005, this book offers an outlook on relations between national governments and multinational companies that provides broad coverage of the key issues likely to determine that relationship during the twenty-first century. From the perspective of the company decision-maker concerned with national regulation and incentive policies to the host government policymaker in an emerging market to the home government policymaker in a Triad country, each dimension is considered and analysed in light of the others. As well, additional stakeholders such as labour groups, shareholders, non-governmental organisations, local governments, and regional organisations are discussed, and their impacts on the relationship are evaluated.

International Business Debra Johnson, Colin Turner, 2004-03-01 With a challenging new approach to its subject matter, this book addresses international business with globalization as its underlying theme. By illustrating globalization as a phenomenon that is fundamentally altering corporate strategy, this book critiques the complexities of globalization and its impact on international business. By doing so, it is entirely unlike other books on the subject. International Business addresses subjects often neglected by other books, such as MNEs, SMEs, and the information economy, while encouraging business students to develop a more international perspective and discard parochial tendencies. With this lucid approach, International

Regional and Global Multinationals Christoph Czychon, 2021-06-29 Based on their ability to facilitate interdependencies across the borders of national and regional markets multinationals enterprises MNEs act as the key drivers of world trade and investment activities While recent global challenges additionally highlight the need to explain and assess the status and progress of internationality regionality previous research renders the concept of firm level globalization as a special but not the general case Christoph Czychon dedicates specific attention to the research on regional and global MNEs based on an extensive and rigorous review of the existing academic literature as well as the analysis of 2005 2015 empirical data from the European context with a focus on CAC40 and DAX30 listed firms In doing so the author offers insights and results that stand in contrast to the original narrative of the debate and presents a comprehensive and updated perspective on regional and global MNEs
