Copper Coleson's Ghost Edward P. Hendrick, 2015-03-20 Example in this ebook CHAPTER I FRIENDS NEW AND OLD

In the rear of a white cottage known to all residents of the town of Truesdell as the Blake homestead stands a great apple tree whose leafy boughs have afforded shade in summer and fruit in autumn to several generations of Blakes At present its hospitable branches have been converted into an out of door gymnasium by Ned Blake great grandson of old Josiah Blake from whose half eaten apple core the tree sprang some seventy years ago Six feet two inches in his socks and as wide as a door is how tradition describes old Josiah and although Ned Blake at seventeen stands less than seventy inches in his sneakers and tips the scales at a trifle less than one hundred and fifty pounds he has something of the supple strength and a goodly measure of the courage and grit that made old Josiah respected among the early settlers of Truesdell Clad in a sleeveless jersey duck trousers and sneakers Ned has just climbed a rope hand over hand to an upper limb from which he descends in a veritable cascade of cat skinning toe holding ape like swings to drop on the turf beside his friend Tommy Beals Bully stuff applauded Tommy You sure can do the monkey tricks Ned but it makes me sweat just to watch em this weather and Tommy hitched his rotund form farther into the shade of the friendly tree It would do you good to try some of them Fatty laughed Ned Come on now Here s a simple one for a starter and catching a horizontal limb above his head Ned proceeded to chin himself with first one hand then with the other and finished with a two handed hoisting swing that left him seated upon the limb Tommy Beals wagged his head in a hopeless negative Nope it can t be done he sighed Whoever drew my plans must have been thinking about ballast instead of aviation but if you ever want a good anchor for a tug of war team why just count on me All right I ll keep it in mind promised Ned but here s something you can do for a little exercise he continued dropping again to the ground I want to grind my camp axe a bit if you ll turn for me Sure I ll do it agreed Tommy good naturedly and fetching a soap box for a seat he squatted beside a heavy grindstone that stood in the shade of the tree For perhaps ten minutes the sharp skurr of steel on stone sounded on the hot August air then ceased abruptly as Ned lifted the axe from the whirling stone and tested its edge gingerly with his thumb Tommy seized the opportunity to let go his hold of the crank handle and wipe the beads of perspiration from his plump countenance Gosh it s hot he panted Ain t the old cleaver sharp yet Ned It s pretty good except for a couple of nicks replied Ned but you needn t turn any more Fatty Here comes Dave Wilbur and I ll get him to spell you Yeah I ll sure admire to watch Weary Wilbur work grinned Beals as a tall lanky youth with hands deep in his pockets turned in at the gate and strolled leisurely across the lawn I ll bet you the ice cream sodas Ned that Dave will find an alibi for any job if he sees it coming continued Tommy in a wheezy whisper I ll take that bet laughed Ned Hello Dave he exclaimed you re just in time to save Fatty s life Grab hold of that crank and turn a minute or so I ve got to grind a couple of nicks out of this axe Dave Wilbur affectionately known to his friends as Weary glanced suspiciously at the axe in Ned Blake s hands then at the perspiring face of Tommy Beals whose grin was but partly concealed by his mopping handkerchief and lastly at the heavy grindstone whose crank handle projected so invitingly toward him Sure I ll turn for you he drawled Hop up Fatty and as Beals surrendered the soap box Dave seated himself with cool deliberation To be continue in this ebook Popular Science ,1949-06 Popular Science gives our readers the information and tools to improve their technology and their world The core belief that Popular Science and our readers share The future is going to be better and science and technology are the driving forces that will help make it better The New Republic Herbert David Croly,1921
