The importance of attaining food and nutritional security through hi-tech horticulture and profitable marketing of horticultural produce is also discussed. This book will be of immense value to the scientific community involved in teaching, research and extension activities related to hi-tech horticulture strategies for enhancing productivity, in enhancing farmers' income, food nutrition and livelihood security. The World Where Gandhi Lives, Complex Contracting Trevor L. Brown, Matthew Potoski, David M. Van Slyke, 2013-08-08. Complex Contracting draws on core social science concepts to provide wide-ranging practical advice on how best to manage complex acquisitions. Using a strong analytical framework, the authors assess contract management practices, suggesting strategies for improvement and ways to avoid the pitfalls of managing contracts for large and sophisticated projects. An in-depth analysis of the US Coast Guard's Deepwater program is included to illustrate ways to respond to real-world contracting challenges. This high-profile and controversial case consisted of a projected $25 billion contract through which the US Coast Guard would buy a system of new boats, aircraft, communications and control architecture to replace its aging fleet. The authors explore the reasons why this program, launched with such promise, turned out so poorly and apply the lessons learned to similarly complex contracting scenarios. This engaging and accessible book has broad applicability and will appeal to policymakers, practitioners, scholars and students. Hideout In the Apocalypse John Stapleton, 2016-11-10. Hideout in the Apocalypse is about surveillance and the crushing of Australia's larrikin culture. In the last three years the Australian government has prosecuted the greatest assault on freedom of speech in the nation's history. The government knew from international research that when it introduced the panopticon universal surveillance into Australia it would have a devastating impact on the culture. When people know they are being watched they behave differently. Dissent is stifled, conformity becomes the norm. This is the so-called chilling effect. Hideout in the Apocalypse in the great tradition of The Lucky Country takes Australia's temperature half a century on from Donald Horne's classic cautionary tale. Now the future has arrived. Forced by a plethora of new laws targeting journalists to use novelistic techniques in his latest book, veteran news reporter John Stapleton confirms the old adage: truth is stranger than fiction. Hideout in the Apocalypse takes up the adventures of retired news reporter Old Alex, first encountered in the book's predecessor, Terror in Australia. Workers Paradise Lost. But as befits the times, this book is more fantastical, intimate and politically acerbic in its portrait of his beloved country. Alex believes he has been under abusive levels of government surveillance since writing a book called Terror in Australia and as a natural empath can hear the thoughts of the surveillance teams on his track, the so-called Watchers on the Watch. Alex also believes he is a cluster soul sent with others of his kind to help save the Earth from an impending apocalypse and has the capacity to channel some of history's greatest writers. Australia might have the worst anti-freedom of speech laws in the Western world, but how can you sue a character like that? Stapleton's essential theme: a place which should have been safe from an impending apocalypse, the quagmire of religious wars enveloping the Middle East, is not safe at all. Ideas are contagious and the Australian government is afraid of them. Australia is a democracy in name only. The war on terror has become a war on the people's right to know, justifying a massive expansion of state power. Alex's swirling head, lifelong fascination with sociology, literature and journalism, and his deep distress over the fate of the Great Southern Land, makes him the perfect character to tell a story which urgently needs to be told.

The Pointing Bone J. Thomas Luther, 2002-09-10. The Pointing Bone is an action adventure that will leave you drained. Set against the majesty of the Sydney Olympic Games and the Australian outback, terrorists build and then demonstrate that they have nuclear weapons and the willingness to use them. Entangled in this most daring terrorist plot ever is a young aborigine medicine man. Tuomartu would be asked by the tribal elders to chase the evilness that comes upon the tribe. For this purpose, he has only one tool: the ornate stick passed through the generations, believed to wield the power to stand against tribal enemies. Only the medicine man knew how to use the Pointing Bone; only he could save his tribe and perhaps the world from disaster, thought unimaginable before September 11th, 2001. Nuclear weapons in the hands of madmen. What the CIA, Australian Federal Police and inept Olympic security failed to prevent was now in the hands of the Aborigine's spiritual leader. Only the medicine man had the power of the spirit Gods at his disposal, and with his Pointing Bone, he alone would stand against the power of the atom in the hands of extremists.
