R. McClanahan, C. R. C. Sheppard, D. O. Obura, 2000-10-12 Coral reefs are among Earth's most diverse productive and beautiful ecosystems but until recently their ecology and the means to manage them have been poorly understood and documented In response to the inadequate information base for coral reefs this book reviews the ecological and conservation status of coral reefs of the Western Indian Ocean bringing together presentations of the region's leading scientists and managers working on coral reefs Coral Reefs of the Indian Ocean Their Ecology and Conservation starts with a general overview of the biogeography of the region and a historical account of attempts to conserve this ecosystem It goes on to describe the state of the reefs in each of the countries with coral reefs and it concludes with a series of management case studies The book also summarizes most of the existing ecological information on reefs in this region and efforts at management making it useful for students teachers and investigators interested in tropical or marine ecology conservation biology and management and environmental sciences      "The" Salomon Islands Henry Brougham Guppy, 1887      The Solomon Islands and Their Natives Henry Brougham Guppy, 1887      Fishing for Human Perceptions in Coastal and Island Marine Resource Use Systems, 2nd Edition Annette Breckwolde, Wen-Cheng Wang, Hans von Storch, Beate M. W. Ratter, 2019-06-07 Human perceptions decision making and pro environmental behaviour are closely connected This Research Topic focuses on bringing together perceptions and behaviour for sustainable coastal and island marine resource use systems Management and governance of large and small scale coastal marine resource use systems function in highly complex social and ecological environments which are culturally embedded economically interest led and politically biased Management processes therefore have to integrate multiple perspectives as well as perception driven standpoints on the individual as well as the decision makers levels Consequently the analysis of perceptions has developed not only as part of philosophy and psychology but also of environmental science anthropology and human geography It encompasses intuitions values attitudes thoughts mind sets place attachments and sense of place All of these influence human behavior and action and are collected or are available within the respective marine resource use system which may support the livelihood of a large part of the local population Management and governance are not only about mediating between resource use conflicts or establishing marine protected areas they deal with people and their ideas and perceptions Understanding the related decision making processes on multiple scales and levels hence means much more than economically assessing the available marine resources or existing threats to the associated system Over the past decade there has been a growing inter and transdisciplinary international community becoming interested in research which integrates perceptions of coastal and inland residents local and regional stakeholder groups as well as resource and environmental managers and decision makers

By acknowledging the importance of the individual perspective and interest led personal views it became obvious how valuable and important these sources of information are for coastal research. An increase of research effort spent on the link between perceptions and behaviour in marine resource use systems is thus both timely and needed. By offering a diversity of inspiring and comprehensive contributions on the link between perceptions and behaviour this Research Topic aspires to critically enlighten the discourse and applicability of such research for finding sustainable locally identified anchored and integrated marine resource use pathways.
