Art and Objecthood Michael Fried, 1998-04-18 Much acclaimed and highly controversial Michael Fried's art criticism defines the contours of late modernism in the visual arts This volume contains 27 pieces uncompromising exciting and impassioned writings aware of their transformative power during a time of intense controversy about the nature of modernism and the aims and essence of advanced painting and sculpture 16 color plates 72 halftones Frank O'Hara and MoMA Matthew Holman, 2025-08-07 This is the first book to closely examine the curatorial work that the celebrated poet Frank O'Hara 1926-1966 undertook for the Museum of Modern Art in New York and abroad Upon his premature death the New York Times obituary ran with the headline Frank O'Hara 40 Museum Curator Exhibitions Aide at Modern Art Dies Also a Poet However in the half a century since O'Hara's fascinating career as a curator where he oversaw exhibitions of the likes of Jackson Pollock Helen Frankenthaler David Smith and Larry Rivers among others has been eclipsed by the critical attention given over to his poetry Drawing on a broad range of unpublished archival material the book reveals the impact O'Hara's curatorial work had both on the reception of American modern art abroad and on the curatorial profession itself It focuses on his travelling exhibitions for MoMA's International Program a vehicle for soft power during the fraught years of the cultural Cold War exposing him to new art artists and cities while developing important transnational networks far from New York from Madrid to Venice Zagreb to Otterlo Bringing together close readings of O'Hara's poems and unpublished letters with a selection of archival illustrations Holman argues for O'Hara's sense of exuberant continuity between life as a writer and a curator an American and a cosmopolitan revealing that he was so much more besides the quintessential New York poet It is perfect reading for anyone interested in American art in the mid 20th century curatorial and museum studies or simply this lesser known but fascinating aspect of the legendary poet's career

David Smith Michael Brenson, 2022-10-04 An essential account of America's greatest sculptor A magnum opus Marjorie Perloff The Times Literary Supplement The landmark biography of the inscrutable and brilliant David Smith the greatest American sculptor of the twentieth century David Smith a pioneer of Abstract Expressionism did more than any other sculptor of his era to bring the plastic arts to the forefront of the American scene Central to his project of reimagining sculptural experience was challenging the stability of any identity or position Smith sought out the unbounded unbalanced and unexpected creating works of art that seem to undergo radical shifts as the spectator moves from one point of view to another So groundbreaking and prolific were his contributions to American art that by the time Smith was just forty years old Clement Greenberg was already calling him the greatest sculptor this country has produced Michael Brenson's David Smith The Art and Life of a Transformational Sculptor is the first biography of this epochal figure It follows Smith from his upbringing in the Midwest to his heady early years in Manhattan to his decision to establish a permanent studio in Bolton Landing in upstate New York where he would create many of his most significant works among them the Cubis Tanktotems and Zigs It explores his at times tempestuous personal life marked by marriages divorces and fallings out as well as by deep friendships with fellow artists like Helen Frankenthaler and Robert Motherwell His wife Jean Freas described him as salty and bombastic jumbo and featherlight thin skinned and Mack Truck And many more things This enormous contradictory vitality was true of his work as well He was a bricoleur a master welder a painter a photographer and a writer and he entranced critics and attracted admirers wherever he showed his work With this book Brenson has contextualized Smith for a new generation and confirmed his singular place in the history of American art

Beyond Objecthood James Voorhies, 2017-02-24 The rise of the exhibition as critical form and artistic medium from Robert Smithson's antimodernist non sites in 1968 to today's institutional gravitation toward the participatory In 1968 Robert Smithson reacted to Michael Fried's influential essay Art and Objecthood with a series of works called non sites While Fried described the spectator's connection with a work of art as a momentary visual engagement Smithson's non sites asked spectators to do something more to take time looking walking seeing reading and thinking about the combination of objects images and texts installed in a gallery In Beyond Objecthood James Voorhies traces a genealogy of spectatorship through the rise of the exhibition as a critical form and artistic medium Artists like Smithson Group Material and Michael Asher sought to reconfigure and expand the exhibition and the museum into something more active open and democratic by inviting spectators into new and unexpected encounters with works of art and institutions This practice was sharply critical of the ingrained characteristics long associated with art institutions and conventional exhibition making and yet Voorhies finds over time the critique has been diluted by efforts of the very institutions that now gravitate to the participatory Beyond Objecthood focuses on innovative figures artworks and institutions that pioneered the exhibition as a critical form tracing its evolution through the activities of curator Harald Szeemann relational art and New Institutionalism Voorhies examines recent artistic and curatorial work by Liam Gillick Thomas Hirschhorn Carsten Holler Maria Lind Apolonija Uter i and others at such institutions as Documenta e flux Manifesta and Office for Contemporary Art Norway and he considers the continued potential of the exhibition as a critical form in a time when the differences between art and entertainment increasingly blur
