alligator in your garage Or if you spotted a mountain lion downtown In cities and suburbs around the world wild creatures are showing up where we least expect them Not all of them arrive by accident and some are here to stay As the human population tops seven billion animals are running out of space Their natural habitats are surrounded and sometimes even replaced by highways shopping centers office parks and subdivisions The result A wildlife invasion of our urban neighborhoods What kinds of animals are making cities their new home How can they survive in our ecosystem of concrete steel and glass And what does their presence there mean for their future and ours Join scientists activists and the folks next door on a journey around the globe to track down our newest wild animal neighbors Discover what is bringing these creatures to our backyards and how we can create spaces for people and animals to live side by side Animal Death Jay Johnston, Professor Fiona Probyn-Rapsey, 2020-03-01 Animal death is a complex uncomfortable depressing motivating and sensitive topic The Biology and Conservation of Australasian Bats Bradley Law, Peggy Eby, Lindy Lumsden, Daniel Lunney, 2011 This book the Biology and Conservation of Australasian Bats follows from the successful 3 day forum of the same name held in April 2007 at the Australian Museum The forum was organised jointly by the Royal Zoological Society of NSW and the Australasian Bat Society Keystone Species That Live in Forests Mitchell Lane Publishers Inc., Bonnie Hinman, 2015-11-01 Most arches built today contain a single building block at the top that is the most important piece This special piece can be found in the arches of soaring cathedrals doorways in temples and even simple buildings made out of wooden blocks It is called a keystone and it holds everything else together Remove the keystone and the building or doorway is likely to collapse The same thing is true in nature Certain species of animals and plants are so important to their ecosystems that if they disappear the whole system may collapse They are called keystone species Some keystone species are large like white rhinos while others are quite small like honey bees But size doesn't matter in an ecosystem All living things rely on other species to survive A keystone species plays an especially large role that affects many different species in an ecosystem Some keystone species are at the top of a huge ecosystem like the Greater Yellowstone Ecosystem while others may affect a tiny ecosystem in a river or forest Whether the ecosystem is big or small the result of a keystone species disappearing or being greatly reduced is the same Just like one falling domino can cause many others to fall the loss of a keystone species can lead to the extinction of many other species Today scientists are focusing more attention on preserving the natural balance in ecosystems Identifying and protecting keystone species is an important part of their work Practical Conservation Biology David Lindenmayer, Mark A.
