

39. FIVE – MINUTE WRITING STORMS

Writing:

Procedure: Tell the students that they have exactly five minutes to write about something. Set a subject which you feel will focus the students' minds but encourage personal rather than generalised responses (see the Box).

Tell them that you will not mark any mistakes of language but will only be concerned with the ideas or experiences they describe. (You can note down general errors and give a language focus activity on these forms at another time.)

For the next lesson, prepare general comments and select texts written by the students, to read out.

Variation: The students write for exactly three minutes and then take it in turns to read what they have written to each other.

BOX: Five-minute writing storms

Themes

The best thing in the lesson today
The worst thing in the lesson today
The best thing to happen to me today
Something which is not fair
A jealous moment
A generous act
A sad (frightening/funny/strange/great) moment
What is friendship?
A road A door
A dilemma

Designed for use in conjunction with your current writing program, these activities are engaging and enjoyable. They include the Partner Journal and the Partner Scrapbook along with several others that enable parents and children to communicate via the written word.

Welcome to Writing Workshop Lynne Dorfman, Stacey Shubitz, 2023-10-10 Stacey Shubitz and Lynne Dorfman welcome you to experience the writing workshop for the first time or in a new light with Welcome to Writing Workshop. Engaging Today's Students with a Model That Works. Through strategic routines, tips, resources, and short focused video clips, teachers can create the sights and sounds of a thriving writing workshop where both students and teachers are working authors. Students spend most of their time writing, not just learning about it. Student choice is encouraged to help create engaged writers, not compliant ones. Students are part of the formative assessment process. Students will look forward to writing time, not dread it. From explanations of writing process and writing traits to small group strategy lessons and mini lessons, this book will provide the know-how to feel confident and comfortable in the teaching of writers.

Becoming An Author: Advice For Academics And Other Professionals Canter, David, Fairbairn, Gavin, 2006-04-01 Advice on careers achieving success.

Styling Your Writing Jen McConnel, 2022-05-11 This text helps developing writers in the academy and beyond think through their writing process and develop strategies for styling their writing to meet the demands of a wide range of goals. The book imagines writing as an assortment of outfits, bundles of styles and strategies through which one approaches a writing purpose such as writing focused on experimentation and growth or writing focused on a professional task. By assessing the outfits writers feel most and least confident in and examining how to be more at home in the outfits that matter to them, this book helps students develop both specific skills and their overall identity as writers. Readers are guided through before, during, and after writing strategies and techniques including freewriting, outlining, visual planning, and composing in multimodal forms. Readers are also introduced to the importance of setting clear writing goals and sharing their work in a variety of ways, both in preparation for classroom success through peer review and writing center visits and beyond the classroom in virtual and in-person spaces. This book serves as a core or supplemental text for writing courses at the undergraduate, graduate, or high school level or as a writing guide for individual readers.
