

3 Tips On How To Write Flashback In A Script

1. Clearly Indicate The Transition Into The Flashback

Use techniques such as a dissolve, a cut, or a specific visual cue to signal to the audience that a flashback is about to begin. This will help the audience understand that the scene they are about to see is not happening in the present moment of the story.

2. Keep The Flashback Relevant To The Story

Flashbacks should be used to provide important information or context that is relevant to the main story and helps to advance the plot. Avoid including flashbacks that are not necessary to the story as it can be confusing for the audience and disrupt the flow of the script.

3. Show Don't Tell

Use the flashback as an opportunity to show the audience what happened, rather than simply telling them about it. This will help to make the scene more engaging and memorable.
