Fly High Story Of Bessie:

Fly High! Louise Borden, Mary Kay Kroeger, 2001 Discusses the life of the determined African American woman who went all the way to France in order to earn her pilot's license in 1921. In her early twenties Bessie moved to Chicago. Perhaps there she could find a bigger life. In the city Bessie heard many tales of World War I from returned veterans. She also heard there were woman airplane pilots in France. From then on she was determined to become a pilot. But she soon found out that no one would teach a woman, especially a woman with dark skin, how to fly. To study in France was her only chance, and by working hard and saving her money she managed at last to get there. Bessie Coleman became the first African American to earn a pilot's license. She was somebody. The inspiring story of her difficult early years, her success as a stunt pilot putting on daring air shows in many states, and her dedication to telling young African Americans wherever she went, "You can be somebody. You can fly high just like me," is as moving and important today as it was then. Simply told with evocative full color illustrations, this is a special book for today's young people.

Silber, 2016-08-23 What's missing from your teacher education program? According to research studies, one glaring omission is gender. Tomorrow's teachers receive little instruction or training on the tremendous impact of gender in the classroom. Just how does gender influence teaching, the curriculum, and the lives of teachers and students in the classroom? This unique book has been designed to answer these questions. Gender in the Classroom is intended to be used across the teacher education curriculum, from subject-specific methods courses to foundations from educational psychology to student teaching. It can be adopted for an entire program or several instructors can adopt it jointly, or a single instructor can adopt it as one of several or a supplementary text for a course. A comprehensive Instructor's Manual provides information and materials for teacher educators who adopt the text. Each chapter offers practical information and skills about gender and sex differences, curriculum, and specific teaching methods. Written in a lively style, the text features a number of interactive activities to engage and instruct the reader. The chapters follow a common format designed to invite student interest and action. Each is built around Essential Equity Questions that focus on pertinent gender-related questions and issues in a specific subject area.

the role of women in education intersections of the teaching profession feminism and teachers as activists for social change gender differences in cognitive ability attitudes and behavior how to teach and implement Title IX how to observe classrooms to see gender bias social studies education English language arts methods science education and mathematics and technology education Interactions in each chapter engage students in activities to promote understanding Each Interaction is linked to one or more specific INTASC standards In the last chapter the emphasis is on applying many of the skills learned previously it gives student teachers and their supervisors several tools they can use for analyzing classroom teaching and detecting gender bias This chapter also includes a culminating activity for identifying and correcting curricular bias In fact many of the techniques in this text can be applied to uncover and correct not only gender bias but racial ethnic and cultural bias as well The Instructor s Manual 978 0 8058 5475 6 is now available electronically please contact our customer service department to request a copy
