

What are business owners responsibilities on Fire Safety Regulations?

Commercial properties have to meet stringent safety regulations, failure to comply puts you at risk of hefty fines or even imprisonment

Does the responsibility lie with the business owner or the landlord?

Breaching fire safety regulations can have serious implications on both you and your business; Gov.uk (2019) states that the fine for minor penalties can be up to £5,000 and major penalties can have unlimited fines and up to 2 years in prison.

A pub landlord in Exeter was fined and given a prison sentence earlier this year, following the landlords failure to implement recommendations following a Fire Risk Assessment.

Sean McPartland (Managing Director at Logic Fire & Security) said "the minimum legal requirements are constantly changing and buildings and equipment must be continually serviced and kept up to date. So if you are a business owner or a landlord of commercial properties, you need to take your Fire Regulations seriously. It's difficult to stay on top of your responsibilities, but the ramifications are costly if you don't."

The severity of non-compliance to the latest fire safety regulations is too great to ignore. Contact Logic Fire and Security today to discuss your responsibilities and become compliant today!
