The Volunteer Gianna Toboni, 2025-04 A riveting account of one inmate's quest to die on death row and a fearless look at a system of punishment that has failed the public it claims to serve When Scott Dozier was sent to Nevada's death row in 2007 convicted of a pair of grisly murders he didn't cry foul or embark upon a protracted innocence campaign He sought instead to expedite his execution to hasten his inevitable death He decided he would rather face his end swiftly than die slowly in solitary confinement In volunteering for execution Dozier may have been unusual But in the tortuous events that led his death date to be scheduled and rescheduled planned and then stayed his time on death row was anything but In The Volunteer Emmy Award winning investigative reporter Gianna Toboni traces the twists and turns of Dozier's story along the way offering a hard look at the history and controversy that surround the death penalty today Toboni reveals it to be a system rife with black market dealings and supply chain labyrinths with disputed drugs and botched executions Today's death penalty generally carried out through lethal injection has proven so cumbersome ineffective and potentially harrowing that some states have considered a return to the electric chairs and firing squads of the past believing those approaches to be not only more effective but more humane No matter where you stand on the morality of capital punishment there's no denying that the death penalty is failing the American public With costs running into the billions and countless lives kept in limbo it has proven incapable of achieving its desired end executing the inmates that fellow Americans have deemed guilty of the most heinous crimes With The Volunteer Toboni offers an insightful and profound look at how the death penalty went so terribly wrong A spellbinding story down to its shocking conclusion it brings to light the horrifying realities of state sanctioned killings realities that many would prefer to ignore

The Storytellers' Journey Joseph Daniel Sobol, 1999 This is the seed of The Storytellers Journey Joseph Daniel Sobol's history of the past thirty years of American storytelling In this compelling examination of the contemporary search for myth Sobol explores the social and psychological roots of the storytelling revival and the ever resurgent power of the storyteller Drawing on interviews with dozens of storytellers around the country Sobol paints the revival as part of a larger process of cultural revitalization He traces the growth of the preeminent revival organization the National Association for the Preservation and Perpetuation of Storytelling NAPPS and details the individual passions the organizational politics and the economic social and mythic forces that have combined to transform a ragtag assemblage of enthusiasts into a national and international network of arts professionals A seemingly chance encounter between a restlessly ambitious high school teacher and a coonhunting tale on the car radio sets off a chain of inspirations that changes the face of a small southern town touches lives across America and revitalizes a homely but treasured art form
