BOND-BUILDING IDEAS TO HELP SIBLINGS GET ALONG

SPECIAL TIME

Hold frequent child-led play sessions with you and one child. Set a timer for 10 minutes daily, or plan a longer amount of time once a week. This is a time, without any disruptions, where a child feels admired and valued by their parent, and eradicates their need to grab attention later on.

PLAY AFFECTION GAMES

Humor and affection diffuses tension, so these games are like first aid to kids that are acting out. Rather than demand they move away from each other, swoop them up into a hug and swing them around, or tell them you have "100 kisses," to give them when you catch them.

ROUGHHOUSING RULES

Delighted, connecting laughter in your rough and tumble play helps everyone let off steam. This is designated time to let children test their strength and exercise their power, so the adults bumble while trying to catch them, act surprised when they jump out from a hiding spots, and fall over dramatically when they touch you. Roughhousing that nurtures ends up with you being got a lot! Wrestle, pillow fight, ramp around, and if you play with two or more children, have them gang up on you—which helps them foster closeness.

STOP SHARING

A good policy for sharing is: "I'll be with you while you wait." The child who was playing with a toy gets to play with it fully until they are done while you wait (and listen) to a child who wants the toy. This gives the cranky, whining child a good outlet to shed their feelings - the feelings making it hard for them to share. As you progress with this over time both children will have chances to offload their feelings with you, which balances and connects and builds independence.

GET THEIR TAKE

Spend some time daily where children tell everyone what went well for them and what was difficult that day, and plan a weekly meeting where you invite them to say what they like about one thing happening in the family, and another thing they'd like to see improve. Ask for their suggestions first, so they really feel heard. You'll provide a space for them to reflect, listen and consider—sometimes they come up with surprising insights.

A Journey Around Our America Louis G. Mendoza, 2012-09-15 Immigration and the growing Latino population of the United States have become such contentious issues that it can be hard to have a civil conversation about how Latinoization is changing the face of America. So in the summer of 2007 Louis Mendoza set out to do just that. Starting from Santa Cruz, California, he bicycled 8,500 miles around the entire perimeter of the country talking to people in large cities and small towns about their experiences either as immigrants or as residents who have welcomed or not Latino immigrants into their communities. He presented their enlightening, sometimes surprising firsthand accounts in Conversations Across Our America: Talking About Immigration and the Latinoization of the United States. Now in A Journey Around Our America, Mendoza offers his own account of the visceral, emotional, intellectual, and spiritual dimensions of traveling the country in search of a deeper, broader understanding of what it means to be Latino in the United States in the twenty-first century. With a blend of first and second person narratives, blog entries, poetry, and excerpts from conversations he had along the way, Mendoza presents his own aspirations for and critique of social relations, political ruminations, personal experiences, and emotional vulnerability alongside the stories of people from all walks of life, including students, activists, manual laborers, and intellectuals. His conversations and his experiences as a Latino on the road reveal the multilayered complexity of Latino life today as no academic study or newspaper report ever could.

A Boomer's Guide to Grandparenting Allan Zullo, Kathryn Zullo, 2004-08 We are your typical boomer nana and papa, say authors Kathryn and Allan Zullo. Younger, healthier, wealthier, and better educated than our grandparents, we are more active and less formal than our own parents were at our age. We no longer fit the traditional image of our elderly kin. That description signals the need for a new kind of grandparenting, a role that The Nanas and the Papas fills to perfection. This completely reworked and updated version is now half again as large as the original. Most boomer grandparents work hard and lead vigorous, often stressful lives where time is a precious commodity, say the Zullos. The Nanas and the Papas helps grandparents relieve the stress of grandparenting and make the most of limited time. Top grandparenting experts cited throughout the book tailor their guidance and recommendations to fit the boomer sensibility, covering topics such as: o How to define the grandparenting role for a new generation o The latest trends in child care o How to work in harmony with your children and their spouses o High-tech grandparenting o Ways to make the most of time alone with grandchildren o Grandparenting and the single-parent household o Grandparents caring for their own parents Filled with expert advice, The Nanas and the Papas provides a smooth transition into grandparenting and sets the stage for successful relationships and experiences for the entire family.

It doesn't take a long list of statistics to convince you that our world is broken. Mission trips, service projects, and supporting children through relief organizations are just a few of the ways that many youth workers engage their students in serving the least of the last and the lost. As good and helpful as these things may be on the surface, that's where they remain at the surface. The problems run far deeper than an occasional paint job or fundraising project can solve. But it's not hopeless. Deep social justice is possible in your youth ministry. Following their bestselling book Deep Ministry in a Shallow World, Kara Powell and Chap Clark provide you with research and insights that will help your ministry get to the next level. In addition to helping you further understand the Deep Design method introduced in their previous book, their practical Kingdom of God theology will help you go beyond simply trying to motivate your students to serve those in need and invite your students and maybe even your leaders to wrestle with why those people are in need in the first place. You'll hear from well-known social justice leaders and youth workers who are making a difference in urban, suburban, and small town settings, including Jim Wallis, Sojourners, Tony Campolo, Eastern University, Lina Thompson, World Vision, Vision Youth, John Perkins, Christian Community Development Association, Shane Claiborne, The Simple Way, Larry Acosta, Urban Youth Workers Institute, Rudy Carrasco, Harambee, Christian Family Center, Jeremy Del Rio, Community Solutions Inc, Noel Castellanos, Christian Community Development Association, and more. In addition to expanding your personal justice commitments, Deep Justice in a Broken World will help you reflect with your own leadership team and will provide you with online resources to take you even deeper into the journey. So go ahead, dig deeper into what it means to heal the broken world in which we live. Take your ministry deeper into social justice. Polyamorous Advice You Won't Get from Your Monogamous Friends Sam Cat, 2025-04-29

The Ultimate Guide to Alternative Relationships. I'm sure your monogamous friends are lovely people and probably have some great advice about other topics. But when it comes to non-monogamy, let's face it: it's best to hear it from someone who's been there before. Enter relationship advisor and polyamorous guru Sam Cat. Sam's personal experience with polyamory, alongside their work educating, speaking with, and supporting other non-monogamous folks, allows them to masterfully take on the role of a peer so you can finally have the answers to all your burning questions: What relationship structure is best for me? How do I tell my partner I want to open up? Is it normal to feel jealous? Should I be friends with my partner's partner? Does more sex really equal more problems?
