Franks, Jonathan H. Turner, 2012-07-09 Until recently a handbook on neurosociology would have been viewed with skepticism by sociologists who have long been protective of their disciplinary domain against perceived encroachment by biology But a number of developments in the last decade or so have made sociologists more receptive to biological factors in sociology and social psychology Much of this has been encouraged by the coeditors of this volume David Franks and Jonathan Turner This new interest has been increased by the explosion of research in neuroscience on brain functioning and brain environment interaction via new MRI technologies with implications for social and psychological functioning This handbook emphasizes the integration of perspectives within sociology as well as between fields in social neuroscience For example Franks represents a social constructionist position following from G H Mead's voluntaristic theory of the act while Turner is more social structural and positivistic Furthermore this handbook not only contains contributions from sociologists but leading figures from the psychological perspective of social neuroscience Composing Social Identity in Written Language Donald L. Rubin, 2013-09-13 This volume constitutes a unique contribution to the literature on literacy and culture in several respects It links together aspects of social variation that have not often been thus juxtaposed ethnicity nationality gender and participant role relations The unifying theme of this collection of papers is that all of these factors are aspects of writers' identities identities which are simultaneously expressed and constructed in text The topic of social identity and writing can be approached from a variety of scholarly avenues including humanistic critical and historical perspectives The papers in the present volume make reference to and contribute to such humanistic perspectives however this book lies squarely within the tradition of social science It draws primarily upon the disciplines of linguistics discourse analysis anthropology social and cognitive psychology and education studies The constituent topics of social identity style and writing themselves lie at the intersections of several related fields of scholarship Writing remains of peak interest to educators from many fields and is still a hot topic The instructional ramifications of the particular issues addressed in this volume are of vital concern to educational systems adjusting to the realities of our multicultural society This publication therefore should attract a substantial and diverse readership of scholars educators and policymakers affiliated with many fields including applied linguistics composition and rhetoric communication studies dialect studies discourse analysis English composition English language arts education ethnic studies language behavior literacy sociolinguistics stylistics women's studies and writing research and instruction The Diachronic Mind M.V.
