

A photograph of a dirt road winding through a forest. The trees on either side have autumn foliage in shades of orange, yellow, and brown. The road leads towards a bright light at the end of the path, creating a strong perspective. The overall mood is peaceful and contemplative.

Ill At Ease In Compton:

Ill-at-ease in Compton Richard M. Elman, 1967 Death of a Suburban Dream Emily E. Straus, 2014-04-22 Compton California is often associated in the public mind with urban America's toughest problems including economic disinvestment gang violence and failing public schools Before it became synonymous with inner city decay however Compton's affordability proximity to manufacturing jobs and location ten miles outside downtown Los Angeles made it attractive to aspiring suburbanites seeking single family homes and quality schools As Compton faced challenges in the twentieth century and as the majority population shifted from white to African American and then to Latino the battle for control over the school district became symbolic of Compton's economic social and political crises Death of a Suburban Dream explores the history of Compton from its founding in the late nineteenth century to the present taking on three critical issues the history of race and educational equity the relationship between schools and place and the complicated intersection of schooling and municipal economies as they shaped a Los Angeles suburb experiencing economic and demographic transformation Emily E Straus carefully traces the roots of antagonism between two historically disenfranchised populations blacks and Latinos as these groups resisted municipal power sharing within a context of scarcity Using archival research and oral histories this complex narrative reveals how increasingly racialized poverty and violence made Compton like other inner ring suburbs resemble a troubled urban center Ultimately the book argues that Compton's school crisis is not at heart a crisis of education it is a long term crisis of development Avoiding simplistic dichotomies between urban and suburban Death of a Suburban Dream broadens our understanding of the dynamics connecting residents and institutions of the suburbs as well as the changing ethnic and political landscape in metropolitan America Sex, Death and God in L.A. David Reid, 1994-04-25 David Reid has gathered together the novelists journalists and cultural critics who could best address the myths define the truths and interpret the media images of the second largest city in the U S They report on the new Latino and Asian populations of South Central and the East Side and the old establishment of the West side Downtown with its heavily mortgaged office towers held by Canadian and Japanese landlords shuttered factories and thriving sweatshops architecture from Irving Gill to Frank O Gehry messiahs from Krishnamurti to L Ron Hubbard rituals of power in Movieland and yoga and seduction in Beverly Hills Ranging from acute political commentary to evocative literary impressions this is a collection that will engage not only those who live in southern California but all those curious about this megalopolis in the desert
