XLVI St. Barbara, who is clad in a red robe and bearing grey mantle and holds in her hands an open book on a green velvet. The open appears twice in the background, on the left kneeling in prayer, and on the right being decapitated. The border, of a diamond pattern in green and silver, is finely executed on the reverse of the leaf in blue and gold. For a colored plate of the miniature of St. Barbara see Manuscript 1017, 100, p. 15. Add MS. 10017, 101, is. x 114 is.

XLVII. Brown & Is. Blue. Illustrated by Florentine artists, out of an oval. Two large medallions, and many other smaller, of the walls of a palace. The plate flowers in 'cushion' or those of 'Garden' or 'Moss'. The ground of the border, which is much wider, is a dull green. The smaller medallions include a specially fine series of ten figures, all of the red position and effusions of St. John, Mary, Mary, Mary, and Mary, and Mary, for the last two, in silver, on St. John, Brown and Florence 1044, 1, p. 15. A miniature of St. Francis on the first page (see plate), and illuminated initials, with painted borders of light foliage, in the other books. In the miniature, St. Francis is appearing in a vision to his biographer, who is writing in his cell, on the wall of which hangs the cardinal's hat, at the foot of the cell with Bernardine, with another Dominican and a Franciscan behind him. The Franciscan monks at the corner are Anthony of Padua, Lelio, Bishop of Padua, Bernardine of Siena, and Clare. The border is of dull gold with continuous ornamentation chiefly in blue, green, and silver. The text is from St. Bernardino's Trattato di San Francesco, printed at Rome, 1547, MS. 1000, 114 is. x 114 is.

XLIX. Miniatures and illuminated pages, many in all, from a Book of Hours, executed at Bologna, early sixteenth century, and closely resembling those in a Book of Hours of Brussels attributed to Simon Bening. Gáldy, 2019-01-22 Cabinets of prints and drawings are found in the earliest art collections of Early Modern Europe From the sixteenth century onwards some of them acquired such fame that the necessity for an ordered and scientific display meant that a dedicated keeper was occasionally employed to ensure that fellow enthusiasts as well as visiting diplomats courtiers and artists might have access to the print room Often collected and displayed together with drawings the prints formed a substantial part of princely collections which sometimes achieved astounding longevity as a specialised group of collectibles such as the Florentine Gabinetto Disegni e Stampe at the Uffizi GDSU Prints and drawings both bought and commissioned were collected by princes and by private amateurs Like the rest of their collections the prints and drawings were usually preserved and displayed as part of or near the owner's library in close proximity to scientific instruments cut gems or small sculptural works of art Both prints and drawings not only documented an encyclopaedic approach to the knowledge available at the time but also depicted parts of the collections in the form of a paper museum Prints and drawings also served as a guide to the collections They spread their fame and the renown of their owners across Europe and into new worlds of collecting both East and West This volume explores issues such as when how and why did cabinets of prints and drawings become a specialised part of princely and private collections How important were collections of prints and drawings for the self representation of a prince or connoisseur among specialists and social peers Is the presentation of a picture hanging in a gallery for example by Charles Eisen for the Royal Galleries at Dresden to be treated as documentary evidence Are there notable differences in the approach to collecting presentation and preservation of prints and drawings in diverse parts of the world What was the afterlife of such collections up to the present day
