Poetics of the Incarnation Cristina Maria Cervone,2013-02-11 The Gospel of John describes the Incarnation of Christ as the Word made flesh an intriguing phrase that uses the logic of metaphor but is not traditionally understood as merely symbolic Thus the conceptual puzzle of the Incarnation also draws attention to language and form what is the Word how is it related to language how can the Word become flesh Such theological questions haunt the material imagery engaged by medieval writers the structural forms that give their writing shape and even their ideas about language itself In Poetics of the Incarnation Cristina Maria Cervone examines the work of fourteenth century writers who rather than approaching the mystery of the Incarnation through affective identification with the Passion elected to ponder the intellectual implications of the Incarnation in poetical and rhetorical forms Cervone argues that a poetics of the Incarnation becomes the grounds for working through the philosophical and theological implications of language at a point in time when Middle English was emerging as a legitimate if contested medium for theological expression In brief lyrics and complex narratives late medieval English writers including William Langland Julian of Norwich Walter Hilton and the anonymous author of the Charters of Christ took the relationship between God and humanity as a jumping off point for their meditations on the nature of language and thought the elision between the concrete and the abstract the complex relationship between acting and being the work done by poetry itself in and through time and the meaning latent within poetical forms Where Passion devoted writing would focus on the vulnerability and suffering of the fleshly body these texts took imaginative leaps such as when they depict the body of Christ as a lily or the written word Their Incarnational poetics repeatedly call attention to the fact that in theology as in poetics form matters A Talent for Living Barbara L. Bellows,2006-06-21 Bellows has produced the first biography of this very private woman and emotionally complex writer whose life story is also the history of a place and time Charleston in the first half of the twentieth century New East Asian Economic Development: The Interaction of Capitalism and Socialism Lily Xiao Hong Lee,2016-09-16 This text documents the economic development of East Asian countries in order to highlight the beneficial techniques used to increase growth Socialist and capitalist structures are discussed complete with an
