American Notes Len Jenkin, 1988

Tragedy in the Contemporary American Theatre Robert J. Andreach, 2014-07-16 This book refutes the claim that tragedy is no longer a vital and relevant part of contemporary American theatre Tragedy in the Contemporary American Theatre examines plays by multiple contemporary playwrights and compares them alongside the works of America's major twentieth century tragedians Eugene O'Neill, Arthur Miller and Tennessee Williams. The book argues that tragedy is not only present in contemporary American theatre but issues from an expectation fundamental to American culture: the pressure on characters to create themselves. Tragedy in the Contemporary American Theatre concludes that tragedy is vital and relevant though not always in the Aristotelian model, the standard for traditional evaluation. Encyclopedia of American Drama Jackson R. Bryer, Mary C. Hartig, 2015-04-22 Provides a comprehensive guide to American dramatic literature from its origins in the early days of the nation to American classics such as Arthur Miller's Death of a Salesman and Thornton Wilder's Our Town to the groundbreaking works of today's best writers.

The Undefeated Rhumba Champ Charles Leipart, 1982 The scene is a hospital room where Archer, a young veteran and amputee, is bent on seducing his prim and proper nurse. He feels that his self-esteem as a man, which has been undermined by the loss of his leg, will be restored by making love to Miss Harris, but she isn't having any. Trying another ploy, Archer snaps a disco tape into his recorder and slowly Miss Harris gives way to her secret passion for dancing. Her behind begins to twitch, her shoulders follow, and shortly she is dancing energetically about the room, loosening the buttons of her well-starched uniform. When Archer hops over to join her, Miss Harris quickly regains control of herself, but the ice has definitely been broken, and as confidences are exchanged, it appears certain that something more substantial than the mere gratification of Archer's lecherous impulses may well be in the offing.

Land/scape/theater Elinor Fuchs, Una Chaudhuri, 2002 Essays by leading theater scholars and theorists exploring the turn to landscape in modern and contemporary theater.

Trees Israel Horowitz, 1970 THE STORIES TREES Ostensibly concerned with a family innocently debating which tree to chop down for Christmas, the play becomes a parable both of man's mindless destruction of his environment and of his callousness towards other living things.

Billy Irish Thomas Babe, 1982 THE STORY The scene is a rundown farm in Vermont where two brothers, Billy Irish and Joe Witness, tell each other tales of their conversations with the likes of Mick Jagger and Bob Dylan and as they also imagine themselves to be Jesse and Frank J.
