Coercive Control and the Criminal Law Cassandra Wiener, 2022-12-30 This book considers how a phenomenon as complex as coercive control can be criminalised The recognition and ensuing criminalisation of coercive control in the UK and Ireland has been the focus of considerable international attention It has generated complex questions about the best way to criminalise domestic abuse This work reviews recent domestic abuse criminal law reform in the UK and Ireland In particular it defines coercive control and explains why using traditional criminal law approaches to prosecute it does not work. Laws passed in England and Wales versus Scotland represent two different approaches to translating coercive control into a criminal offence. This volume explains how and why the jurisdictions have taken different approaches and examines the advantages and disadvantages of each. As jurisdictions around the world review what steps need to be taken to improve national criminal justice responses to domestic abuse, the question of what works and why, at the intersection of domestic abuse and the criminal law, has never been more important. As such, the book will be a vital resource for lawyers, policy makers and activists with an interest in domestic abuse law reform.

Focus on Meningitis Research Phyllis V. Strong, 2004. Meningitis is an infection of the fluid of a person's spinal cord and the fluid that surrounds the brain. People sometimes refer to it as spinal meningitis. Meningitis is usually caused by a viral or bacterial infection. Knowing whether meningitis is caused by a virus or bacterium is important because the severity of illness and the treatment differ. Viral meningitis is generally less severe and resolves without specific treatment, while bacterial meningitis can be quite severe and may result in brain damage, hearing loss or learning disability. For bacterial meningitis, it is also important to know which type of bacteria is causing the meningitis because antibiotics can prevent some types from spreading and infecting other people. Before the 1990s, Haemophilus influenzae type b (Hib) was the leading cause of bacterial meningitis, but new vaccines, being given to all children as part of their routine immunizations, have reduced the occurrence of invasive disease due to H. influenzae. Today, Streptococcus pneumoniae and Neisseria meningitidis are the leading causes of bacterial meningitis.
