Gertrude The Emigrant:

Gertrude, the Emigrant Louisa Atkinson, 1998 Gertrude the Emigrant A Tale of Colonial Life 1857 was the first Australian novel written by a native born woman and the first to be illustrated by its author Published a few years after Catherine Spence's Clara Morison 1854 Gertrude also follows that novel in its story of a young immigrant heroine making a life in a colony which is itself in the making The novel draws on authorial and family memories to summon the harsh more complex convict worlds of Sutton Forest the Shoalhaven and Sydney in the late 1830s and 1840s Binding her novel together with a conventional romance and a murder mystery this journalist writer cannot avoid a wandering mode of picaresque which allows her recording eye free play The chief value of Gertrude the Emigrant rests today in its fresh detailed documentation of regional history and its fine evocative descriptions of lands and forests now lost Written from a perspective as interested in domestic life as bush adventures this is a novel which refuses to understand Australian colonial as English life transported elsewhere Writing a New World Dale Spender, 1988 A history still in the making Australian women writers through their letters diaries and fictions have created a new world of literature Dale Spender in this lively and provocative history of white women's literature presents a fresh and forthright view of the achievements of convict writers to writers and feminists of the nineteenth and twentieth centuries

Gertrude, the Emigrant: a tale of colonial life. By an Australian lady [i.e. Caroline L. W. Atkinson]. With numerous engravings*, 1857 The Cambridge Guide to Women's Writing in English Lorna Sage, 1999-09-30 This Guide aims to consolidate and epitomise the re-reading of women's writing that has gone on in the last twenty five years This is an opportunity for stock-taking a timely project when so much writing has been rediscovered reclaimed and republished There are entries on writers on individual texts and on general terms genres and movements all printed in a single alphabetical sequence The earliest written documents in medieval English the visionary writings of Julian of Norwich and Margery Kempe are covered in an historical and geographical sweep that takes us up to the present day The book reflects the spread of literacy the history of colonisation and the development of post-colonial cultures using and changing the English language The entries are written by contributors from all the countries covered The result is a work of reference with a unique feeling for the vitality wealth and diversity of women's writing Gertrude the Emigrant

Australian lady, 1857 The Cambridge History of the Australian Novel David Carter, 2023-07-27 The Cambridge History of the Australian Novel is an authoritative volume on the Australian novel by more than forty experts in the field of Australian literary studies drawn from within Australia and abroad Essays cover a wide range of types of novel writing and publishing from the earliest colonial period through to the present day The international dimensions of publishing Australian fiction are also considered as are the changing contours of criticism of the novel in Australia Chapters examine colonial fiction women's writing Indigenous novels popular genre fiction historical fiction political novels and challenging novels on identity and belonging from recent decades not least the major rise of Indigenous novel writing Essays focus on specific periods of major change in Australian history or range broadly across themes and issues that have influenced fiction across many years and in many parts of the country
