John Locke and Personal Identity K. Joanna S. Forstrom, 2010-03-31 One of the most influential debates in John Locke's work is the problem of personal identity over time. This problem is that of how a person at one time is the same person later in time and so can be held responsible for past actions. The time of most concern for Locke is that of the general resurrection promised in the New Testament. Given the turbulence of the Reformation and the formation of new approaches to the Bible, many philosophers and scientists paid careful attention to emerging orthodoxies or heterodoxies about death. Here K. Joanna S. Forstrom examines the interrelated positions of Rene Descartes, Thomas Hobbes, Henry More, and Robert Boyle in their individual contexts and in Locke's treatment of them. She argues that in this way we can better understand Locke and his position on personal identity and immortality. Once his unique take is understood and grounded in his own theological convictions or lack thereof, we can better evaluate Locke and defend him against classic objections to his thought.

Human Rights Law and Personal Identity Jill Marshall, 2014-06-20 This book explores the role human rights law plays in the formation and protection of our personal identities. Drawing from a range of disciplines, Jill Marshall examines how human rights law includes and excludes specific types of identity which feed into moral norms of human freedom and human dignity and their translation into legal rights. The book takes on a three-part structure. Part I traces the definition of identity and follows the evolution of and protects a right to personal identity and personality within human rights law. It specifically examines the development of a right to personal identity as property, the inter-subjective nature of identity, and the intercession of power and inequality. Part II evaluates past and contemporary attempts to describe the core of personal identity, including theories concerning the soul, the rational mind, and the growing influence of neuroscience and genetics in explaining what it means to be human. It also explores the interrelation and conflict between universal principles and culturally specific rights. Part III focuses on issues and case law that can be interpreted as allowing self-determination. Marshall argues that while in an age of individual identity, people are increasingly obliged to live in conformed ways, pushing out identities that do not fit with what is acceptable. Drawing on feminist theory, the book concludes by arguing how human rights law would be better interpreted as a force to enable respect for human dignity and freedom, interpreted as empowerment and self-determination, whilst acknowledging our inter-subjective identities. In drawing on socio-legal, philosophical, biological, and feminist outlooks, this book is truly interdisciplinary and will be of great interest and use to scholars and students of human rights law, legal and social theory, gender, and cultural studies.
