Combat Support in Korea John G. Westover, 1955 Covers the participation in the Korean War of these arms and services of the United States Army Corps of Engineers Transportation Corps Chemical Corps Signal Corps Medical Corps Ordnance Corps Quartermaster Corps Security Combat Morale

Combat Support in Korea Cpt. John G. Westover, 2017-01-12 One of the cherished beliefs of those who do not know is that the logistical services of the Army lead a safe and boring life even in the combat zone The Combat Engineers and the Signal Corps began to cloud this belief in World War I The Medical Corps the Chemical Corps and the Bomb Disposal squads of the Ordnance Corps began to demand respect as dangerous assignments in World War II In Korea all the services won the right to be shot at War becomes increasingly a matter of logistics The thin cutting edge of infantry armor and artillery still contains the larger proportion of heroes dead and alive but these combat arms depend more and more on the services to provide them not only with the traditional beans and bullets but with gasoline transportation medical service concealing smoke communications equipment graves registration potable water laundry service the list is endless Here are some true accounts that tell how the services fulfilled their missions in a tough and dirty little war There are tales of devotion to duty that match those of any combat arm There are roles of technical proficiency combined with the foresight to seize opportunities as they arose But because these are true stories there are descriptions of actions whose only value is to indicate what should not be done what lack of preparedness means in lives and dollars Here is an honest book one that had to be honest because it was conceived to tell the whole truth for the education of our army This is a book for every soldier every youth who might become a soldier every parent of every such youth He succeeded and the fruit of his labors is here

Passing Fancies in Jewish American Literature and Culture Judith Ruderman, 2019-01-09 This scholarly study explores the conflicting forces of assimilation and cultural heritage in literary portrayals of Jewish American identity In Passing Fancies in Jewish American Literature and Culture Judith Ruderman takes on the fraught question of who passes for Jewish in American literature and culture In today s contemporary political climate religious and racial identities are being reconceived as responses to culture and environment rather than essential qualities Many Jews continue to hold conflicting ideas about their identity seeking deep engagement with Jewish history and the experiences of the Jewish people while holding steadfastly to the understanding that identity is fluid and multivalent Looking at carefully chosen texts from American literature Ruderman elaborates on the strategies Jews have used to pass from the late nineteenth century to the present nose jobs renaming clothing changes religious and racial reclassification and even playing baseball While traversing racial and religious identities has always been a feature of America s nation of immigrants Ruderman shows how the complexities of identity formation and deformation are critically relevant during this important cultural moment
