in World History, Volume 4 David Deming, 2016-04-05 The history of science is a story of human discovery intertwined with religion philosophy economics and technology The fourth in a series this book covers the beginnings of the modern world when 16th century Europeans began to realize that their scientific achievements surpassed those of the Greeks and Romans Western Civilization organized itself around the idea that human technological and moral progress was achievable and desirable Science emerged in 17th century Europe as scholars subordinated reason to empiricism Inspired by the example of physics men like Robert Boyle began the process of changing alchemy into the exact science of chemistry During the 18th century European society became more secular and tolerant Philosophers and economists developed many of the ideas underpinning modern social theories and economic policies As the Industrial Revolution fundamentally transformed the world by increasing productivity people became more affluent better educated and urbanized and the world entered an era of unprecedented prosperity and progress The Road Since Structure Thomas S. Kuhn, 2000 Published in 1962 Kuhn's The Structure of Scientific Revolutions is one of the most important works of the 20th century When he died Kuhn left an unfinished sequel and a group of essays written since 1970 The Road since Structure includes these essays along with Kuhn's replies to criticism and an interview with Kuhn before his death in 1996 Photos The Newtonian Revolution I. Bernard

Cohen, 1980 This volume presents Professor Cohen's original interpretation of the revolution that marked the beginnings of modern science and set Newtonian science as the model for the highest level of achievement in other branches of science It shows that Newton developed a special kind of relation between abstract mathematical constructs and the physical systems that we observe in the world around us by means of experiment and critical observation The heart of the radical Newtonian style is the construction on the mind of a mathematical system that has some features in common with the physical world this system was then modified when the deductions and conclusions drawn from it are tested against the physical universe Using this system Newton was able to make his revolutionary innovations in celestial mechanics and ultimately create a new physics of central forces and the law of universal gravitation Building on his analysis of Newton's methodology Professor Cohen explores the fine structure of revolutionary change and scientific creativity in general This is done by developing the concept of scientific change as a series of transformations of existing ideas It is shown that such transformation is characteristic of many aspects of the sciences and that the concept of scientific change by transformation suggests a new way of examining the very nature of scientific creativity Smithsonian Year Smithsonian Institution,1965 Essays in Memory of Imre Lakatos Robert S. Cohen,P.K. Feyerabend,Marx W. Wartofsky,2012-12-06 The death of Imre Lakatos on February 2 1974 was a personal and philosophical loss to the worldwide circle of his friends colleagues and students This volume reflects the range of his interests in mathematics logic politics and especially in the history and methodology of the sciences Indeed Lakatos was a man in search of rationality in all of its forms He thought he had found it in the historical development of scientific knowledge yet he also saw rationality endangered everywhere To honor Lakatos is to honor his sharp and aggressive criticism as well as his humane warmth and his quick wit He was a person to love and to struggle with
