Southern Section, 1928 First-Class Passengers on a Sinking Ship Richard Lachmann, 2020-01-14 The extent and irreversibility of US decline is becoming ever more obvious as America loses war after war and as one industry after another loses its technological edge Lachmann explains why the United States will not be able to sustain its global dominance He contrasts America s relatively brief period of hegemony with the Netherlands similarly short primacy and Britain s far longer era of leadership Decline in all those cases was not inevitable and did not respond to global capitalist cycles Rather decline is the product of elites success in grabbing control of resources and governmental powers Not only are ordinary people harmed but also capitalists become increasingly unable to coordinate their interests and adopt policies and make investments necessary to counter economic and geopolitical competitors elsewhere in the world Conflicts among elites and challenges by non elites determine the timing and mould the contours of decline Lachmann traces the transformation of US politics from an era of elite consensus to present day paralysis combined with neoliberal plunder explains the paradox of an American military with an unprecedented technological edge unable to subdue even the weakest enemies and the consequences of finance s cannibalisation of the US economy Catalogue of the College of Arts and Sciences and the College of Agriculture Canton Christian College, Canton Lingnan University (China), 1925 From the opening of the eighteenth century to the present day, by J.H. Beyond Progress Hugh De Santis,1996-05-15 Argues that in a world of dwindling resources economic inequality and unrelenting violence the belief in endless progress can no longer be sustained Asserts that we have arrived at a great historic divide in which the old modern order is giving way to an age of mutualism Draws on world history and the study of international relations to explore the emerging future in which new forms of social and political identity and regional associations and alignments will be needed to solve global problems Argues that mutualism will require a dramatic change in the way states international institutions corporations and local communities interact and that this transformation will be especially difficult for the United States which will have to abandon its exceptionalist identity and rejoin a world it can no longer escape Calendar London School of Economics and Political Science,1928 The Nation ,1913
