Freedom and Resistance Christopher Curry, 2018-08-23 After the American Revolution enslaved and free blacks who had been loyal to the British cause arrived in the Bahamas drawn by British promises of liberty and land Freedom and Resistance shows how Black Loyalists struggled to find freedom clashing with white loyalists who tried either to bind them to illegal indentured contracts or to enslave them Despite these challenges Black Loyalists made significant contributions to Bahamian society They advanced ideas of civil liberty through political activism and armed resistance built churches and schools that became the foundations of self reliant black communities and participated in the emerging market economy Christopher Curry highlights the complex ways in which Black Loyalists transplanted and re inscribed traditions from colonial America into new host societies and in doing so dynamically refashioned their identities and institutions By comparing the experiences of these Bahamians to those of other Black Loyalist communities in Jamaica and Nova Scotia he adds a new global dimension to the freedom struggle that spread from the American Revolution A volume in the series Contested Boundaries edited by Gene Allen Smith

Honoring Ancestors in Sacred Space Grace Turner, 2023-10-10 The Anglican Church established St

Matthew's Parish on the eastern side of Nassau to accommodate a population increase after British Loyalists migrated to the Bahamas in the 1780s. The parish had three separate cemeteries: the churchyard cemetery and Centre Burial Ground were for whites but the Northern Burial Ground was officially consecrated for nonwhites in 1826 by the Bishop of Jamaica. In Honoring Ancestors in Sacred Space, Grace Turner posits that the African Bahamian community intentionally established this separate cemetery in order to observe non-European burial customs. Analyzing the landscape and artifacts found at the site, Turner shows how the community used this space to maintain a sense of social and cultural belonging despite the power of white planters and the colonial government. Although the Northern Burial Ground was covered by storm surges in the 1920s and later a sidewalk was built through the site, Turner's fieldwork reveals a wealth of material culture. She points to the cemetery's location near water, trees planted at the heads of graves, personal items left with the dead, and remnants of food offerings as evidence of mortuary practices originating in West and Central Africa. According to Turner, these African-influenced ways of memorializing the dead illustrate W. E. B. Du Bois's idea of double consciousness: the experience of existing in two irreconcilable cultures at the same time. Comparing the burial ground with others in Great Britain and the American colonies, Turner demonstrates how Africans in the Atlantic diaspora did not always adopt European customs but often created a separate parallel world for themselves. A volume in the Florida Museum of Natural History Ripley P. Bullen Series.
