Land Of The Long Weekend:

Land of the Long Weekend Ronald Conway, 1978-01-01 Phraseology and Culture in English Paul

Skandera, 2008-08-22 The proposition that there is a correlation between language and culture or culture specific ways of thinking can be traced back to the views of Herder and von Humboldt in the late 18th and early 19th centuries It is generally accepted today that a language especially its lexicon influences its speakers cultural patterns of thought and perception in various ways for example through a culture specific segmentation of the extralinguistic reality the frequency of occurrence of particular lexical items or the existence of keywords or key word combinations revealing core cultural values The aim of this volume is to explore the cultural dimension of a wide range of preconstructed or semi preconstructed word combinations in English The 17 papers of the volume are divided into four sections focusing on particular lexemes e g enjoy and its collocates types of word combinations e g proverbs and similes use related varieties such as the language of tourism or answering machine messages and user related varieties such as Aboriginal English or African English The sections are preceded by a prologue tracing the development of the study of formulaic language and followed by an epilogue which draws together the threads laid out in the various papers The relation between language and culture in general has been explored in a number of important works over the past ten years However the study of the relation between English phraseology and culture in particular has been largely neglected This volume is the first book length publication devoted entirely to this topic

Psychomanagement Robert Spillane, 2017-03-15 The ultimate test of management is performance the achievement of actual results Why then do Australian managers concern themselves with their colleagues personalities and motives Why have they become infatuated with emotional intelligence and in bizarre cases with spiritual intelligence Traditionally managers who performed earned the right to argue with their colleagues Nowadays individuals who argue are said to lack soft skills while a sad few are thought to be suffering from a personality disorder The popularity of soft skill management has created psychomanagers managers who have entered into a Faustian bargain with psychologists Some managers work with psychologists to master themselves others work with psychologists to master other people As psychomanagement requires specialised knowledge many Australian managers have yielded their authority to counsellors coaches and consultants many of whom believe that human behaviour is determined by internal and external forces over which individuals have little or no control Accordingly psychologists have laboured to absorb the idea of the free and responsible individual into a pseudo scientific framework that denies moral agency The result is that ideas of right and wrong have been replaced with healthy and sick In their pursuit of a therapeutic state psychologists have medicalised morality and managers have embraced powerful myths about minds motive forces personality traits social conditioning leadership occupational stress and mental illness Consequently the twin ideas of personal freedom and responsibility have been sabotaged Freud Maslow Eysenck Skinner and other influential psychologists have denied or minimised the importance of personal responsibility And insofar as managers have entered into an unholy alliance with them they too have minimised personal responsibility at the workplace This book is about Australian managers and their long standing love affair with psychologists For fifty years the author has studied taught and consulted with managers and waltzed with several famous psychologists and an infamous psychiatrist Fortunately they represented both sides of the debate about personal responsibility and human freedom This book is therefore a personal and selective account of a professional life spent studying the problematic relationship between managers and psychologists

The Last Half Century of Chinese Overseas Elizabeth Sinn,1998-01-01 The papers collected in this anthology look at Chinese overseas residing in five continents in the half century after the Second World War from many new perspectives Some papers raise questions about the Chinese diaspora in broad conceptual terms and inquire into the meaning of being Chinese outside China Other papers examine life in local communities analysing how historical and contemporary circumstances affect their lives and the ways they negotiate their identity in the host country In depth case studies further bring out the complexity of the subject by identifying the range of variables including the social economic political and cultural characteristics of the places of origin and destinations as well as emigration and immigration policies which affect the patterns of migration and the nature of settlement in any place at any time This is especially highlighted in chapters using a comparative approach With scholars from different disciplines using different types of data methodologies and theoretical tools the richness of the subject matter becomes apparent This volume will no doubt go a long way both to broaden and deepen our understanding of the Chinese overseas and by showing the many possibilities for further investigation to strengthen Chinese overseas as a field of study
