The Land and People of Kenya Michael Maren,1989 Introduces the history geography people culture government and economy of Kenya The Land and People of Kenya Michael Maren,1989 Introduces the history geography people culture government and economy of Kenya Other Lands, Other Peoples National Education Association of the United States. Committee on International Relations,Elizabeth M. Thompson,1961 Reparations at last: Land justice for Kenya's Ogiek Lara Domínguez,Aydan Figaroa,2023-02-02 Since time immemorial indigenous communities in Kenya have been victims of land rights abuses With the advent of colonization these communities were dispossessed of their lands which were given to British settlers Subsequent post colonial governments did nothing to remedy these historical land injustices instead this history of arbitrary dispossession continues under the guise of conservation The Ogiek of the Mau Forest in Kenya are among Africa s last remaining forest dwellers and have lived there since time immemorial To them the Mau Forest is a home school cultural identity and way of life that provides the community with an essential sense of pride and destiny In fact the term Ogiek literally means caretaker of all plants and wild animals For decades Ogiek have been routinely subjected to arbitrary forced evictions from their ancestral land without consultation or compensation first by colonial authorities and subsequently by the Kenyan government Ogiek rights over their traditionally owned lands have been systematically denied and ignored while the government has allocated land to third parties including political allies and permitted substantial commercial logging to take place without sharing any of the benefits with the Ogiek The culmination of all these actions has resulted in the Ogiek being prevented from practising their traditional hunter gatherer way of life thus threatening their very existence After numerous unsuccessful attempts to have their grievances addressed by the government in 2009 the Ogiek represented by Minority Rights Group International MRG the Ogiek People Development Program OPDP and the Centre for Minority Rights Development CEMIRIDE approached the African Commission on Human and Peoples Rights the Commission with their grievances In 2012 the African Commission referred the matter to the African Court on Human and Peoples Rights the African Court In 2017 the African Court delivered a landmark judgment on the merits of the case in favour of the Ogiek holding that the Kenyan Government has breached the community s rights to their ancestral lands together with numerous other related human rights Five years later in June 2022 the Court delivered a reparations judgment which set out remedies for the breaches found in the 2017 judgment The reparations judgment represents a hard won and long awaited victory for the Ogiek after decades of dispossession non recognition and marginalization This judgement is significant because it clarifies the scope and content of state obligations to uphold indigenous peoples land rights and emphasizes the importance of protecting indigenous people s property rights as integral to the fulfilment of other rights including social and cultural rights It also emphasizes the importance of an effective consultation process concerning indigenous people The Court s Merit and Reparation judgments are novel and represent a beacon of hope for other indigenous peoples across Africa The African

Court's twin judgments also represent a new paradigm on the protection of the rights of indigenous peoples and on conservation in Africa. This briefing summarizes the Ogiek reparations judgement of 23 June 2022 giving an overview of the years long struggle of the Ogiek community for the tenure of our ancestral land the Mau Forest. The landmark judgement of the African Court gives our community access to and ownership of our natural resources in the Mau Forest considered by us Ogiek to be our supermarket for all and sundry we get our food medicine materials for shelter and special spiritual nourishment among myriads of things from the forest says Daniel Kobei Founder and Executive Director of OPDP. This brief explains the reparations judgement by the African Court. It gives a brief historical background to the case before the African Court and thereafter describes the considerations of the African Court and the decisions made. Finally it also discusses the implications that the reparations judgement has not only for the Ogiek community but also for other indigenous communities in Africa.

Featuring chapters and in depth case studies on South Africa and Zimbabwe Malawi Kenya Botswana and West Africa it traces the development of ideas about sustainable development and addresses a new agenda based on social justice. The authors critically examine contemporary neoliberal market led reforms and the legacy of colonialism on the land question. They argue that debates on sustainable development should be placed in the context of structural interests access and equity rather than technical management of land and resources. Additionally they show that these structural factors cannot be transformed by institutional reform based on notions of elective democracy community participation and market reform but require a far more radical programme to redress the injustices of the colonial system that continue today. The book advocates a commitment to building sustainable livelihoods for farmers calling for a redistribution of land and natural resources to challenge existing economic relations and frameworks for development Kenya, 1988 Kenya Great Britain. histories current events and emerging trends Each country is examined through the following sections Basic Facts Land and People The Past Political and Economic History The Present Contemporary Issues and The Future In addition to country chapters the book features extended essays on Africa s Historical Background and the Colonial Period The combination of factual accuracy and up to date detail along with its informed projections make this an outstanding resource for researchers practitioners in international development media professionals government officials potential investors and students The content is thorough yet perfect for a one semester introductory course or general library reference Available in both print and e book formats and priced low to fit student and library budgets

Kenya's Uncertain Democracy Peter

Kagwanja,Roger Southall,2013-09-13 The plunging of Kenya until recently a centre of stability and growth in East Africa into political and economic uncertainty following the general election of December 2007 is regarded as a major cause for global and African concern It is widely accepted that the elections were deeply flawed and that there was electoral malfeasance by all the major players President Kibaki s rapid declaration of victory in the face of a heavily disputed election and his determination to hold on to the levers of state power precipitated a deadly crisis communal violence and economic decline A power sharing deal between Kibaki and Opposition leader Raila Odinga signed in February seems to be holding but Kenya ranks among the worlds growing number of democracies at risk This book takes a new look at the 2007 election the post election crisis the underlying interaction of ethnicity class and political power forced displacement the role of international forces and the country s power sharing arrangement The study will draw upon the expertise of a variety of leading experts on Kenya and will be edited by Peter Kagwanja and Roger Southall The overall project was based on a workshop in Nairobi on 6 7 December 2008 This book was published as a special issue of the Journal of Contemporary African Studies

Carbon Conflicts and Forest Landscapes in Africa Melissa Leach,Ian Scoones,2015-06-05 Amidst the pressing challenges of global climate change the last decade has seen a wave of forest carbon projects across the world designed to conserve and enhance forest carbon stocks in order to reduce carbon emissions from deforestation and offset emissions elsewhere Exploring a set of new empirical case studies Carbon Conflicts and Forest Landscapes in Africa examines how these projects are unfolding their effects and who is gaining and losing Situating forest carbon approaches as part of more general moves to address environmental problems by attaching market values to nature and ecosystems it examines how new projects interact with forest landscapes and their longer histories of intervention The book asks what difference does carbon make What political and ecological dynamics are unleashed by these new commodified marketized approaches and how are local forest users experiencing and responding to them The book s case studies cover a wide range of African ecologies project types and national political economic contexts By examining these cases in a comparative framework and within an understanding of the national regional and global institutional arrangements shaping forest carbon commoditisation the book provides a rich and compelling account of how and why carbon conflicts are emerging and how they might be avoided in future This book

Turner,H. Awala Ochung',Jeanne B. Turner,1998-04 Botanist Homer L Shantz took photographs of the Kenyan landscape in the early 1920s as part of his effort to document the natural plant cover of Africa He returned there with B L Turner in the late 1950s to repeat the photographs In 1990 Raymond Turner traveled to Kenya under the auspices of the National Geographic Society in order to match the photographs made by Shantz and B L Turner and to show the changes that have occurred over the decades since Shantz s initial journey Turner s comparative photos and research into the botanical record dramatically reflect the encroachment of woody plants in arid areas and the increasing human impact in more humid locales Turner s discussions of the photographs and the conclusions he draws provide an important reference for ecologists geographers botanists and other researchers attempting similar studies By documenting vegetation change in a region broadly similar climatically to North America s subtropical deserts and grasslands but different in its wildlife and its human culture the book shows that the endpoints of landscape status are similar despite the vastly different histories of these two regions of the world
