Approaches to Assessment that Enhance Learning in Higher Education Stylianos Hatzipanagos,Rebecca Rochon,2014-10-10 This book addresses the need to diversify mainstream forms of assessment currently used in Higher Education in order to re establish the focus on the learning process Making assessment central to student learning is about returning to what current research emphasises the primary beneficiary of assessment should be the student To achieve this in the assessment context students and tutors must engage in a process of dialogue and feedback It seems to be widely accepted that assessment succeeds when the learner monitors identifies and then is able to bridge the gap between current learning achievements and agreed goals It is however more questionable whether adequate opportunities are given to students to be active participants in closing what has been termed the loop Contributors to this book have responded in different ways to the challenge of enhancing learning through assessment offering reasons for the lack of focus on learning within assessment processes as well as suggesting possible solutions The chapters demonstrate a balance between innovation and practicality drawing on the underpinning theories The result is both rich in discussion and an extremely useful resource for practitioners This book was originally published as a special issue of Assessment Evaluation in Higher Education

Treaty Interpretation Under the Vienna Convention on the Law of Treaties Chang-fa Lo, 2017-10-31 This book is devoted to an idea of a second round of codification of certain new rules for treaty interpretation Currently treaty interpretation is guided by Articles 31 through 33 of the Vienna Convention on the Law of Treaties VCLT The fundamental rule is that a treaty shall be interpreted in good faith in accordance with the ordinary meaning to be given to the terms of the treaty in their context and in the light of its object and purpose These rules lay the foundation for treaty interpretation They represent the first round of codification of the contents of some previous customary international law rules The book argues that the current rules are overly simplified After almost fifty years of codification of the VCLT the codified text in it is practically insufficient in addressing some traditional treaty interpretation issues such as the interpretation involving time factors or technology development and in coping with some new development of international law such as the diversification and fragmentation of international treaties and new challenges such as the need of coordination between different treaties and the need of introducing external values including human rights into a treaty through treaty interpretation process The book further argues that there is a need to have a second round of codification so as to incorporate new rules into the VCLT to be followed by treaty interpreters to make treaty interpretation more consistent and transparent and more in line with the shared value of international community The book proposes the contents of certain new rules to be considered as the new codified rules for treaty interpretation
