Historical GIS Ian N. Gregory, Paul S. Ell, 2007-12-13 Historical GIS is an emerging field that uses Geographical Information Systems GIS to research the geographies of the past Ian Gregory and Paul Ell's study first published in 2007 comprehensively defines this field exploring all aspects of using GIS in historical research A GIS is a form of database in which every item of data is linked to a spatial location This technology offers unparalleled opportunities to add insight and rejuvenate historical research through the ability to identify and use the geographical characteristics of data Historical GIS introduces the basic concepts and tools underpinning GIS technology describing and critically assessing the visualisation analytical and e science methodologies that it enables and examining key scholarship where GIS has been used to enhance research debates The result is a clear agenda charting how GIS will develop as one of the most important approaches to scholarship in historical geography A Compendious Abstract of the Public General Acts of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland Great Britain, 1840 The Folklore of Hereford & Worcester Roy Palmer, 1992 ENGLISH BOTANY James Sowerby, 1902 Reports from Commissioners Great Britain. Parliament. House of Lords, 1838 The Victoria history of the county of Hereford William Page, 1908-01-01 Real English James Milroy, Lesley Milroy, 2014-06-03 While it is accepted that the pronunciation of English shows wide regional differences there is a marked tendency to under estimate the extent of the variation in grammar that exists within the British Isles today In addressing this problem Real English brings together the work of a number of experts on the subject to provide a pioneer volume in the field of the grammar of spoken English Theatricality and Narrative in Medieval and Early Modern Scotland Mr John J McGavin, 2013-04-28 Theatricality and Narrative in Medieval and Early Modern Scotland analyses narrative accounts of public theatricality in late medieval and early modern Scottish culture pre 1645 Literary texts such as journal memoir and chronicles reveal a complex spectatorship in which eye witness textual witness and the imagination interconnect The narrators represent a broad variety of public actions as theatrical included are instances of assault and assassination petition clerical interrogation dissent preaching play and display the performance of identity and the spectatorship of tourism Varying influences of personal experience oral tradition and existing written record colour the narratives Discernible also are those rhetorical and generic forms which witnesses employ to give a comprehensible shape to events Narratives of theatricality prove central for understanding early Scottish culture since they record moments of contact between those in power and those without it they show how participants aimed to influence both present spectators and the witness of history they reveal the contested nature of ambiguous public genres and they point up the pleasures and responsibilities of spectatorship McGavin demonstrates that early Scottish culture is revealed as much in its processes of witnessing as in that which it claims to witness Although the book's emphasis is on the early modern period its study of chronicle narratives takes it back from the period of their composition predominantly 15th and 16th century to earlier medieval events The Statutes Great Britain, 1875 A Collection of the ... Statutes ... (5 & 6 Vict.), as far as relates to the office of a Justice of the Peace, etc John Tidd Pratt, 1842 Clash of Cultures? Roger White, Mike Hodder, 2018-02-21 The general perception of the west midlands region in the Roman period is that it was a backwater compared to the militarized frontier zone of the north or the south of Britain where Roman culture took root early in cities like Colchester London and St Albans and lingered late at cities like Cirencester and Bath with their rich late Roman villa culture The west midlands region captures the transition between these two areas of the military north and civilized south Where it differed and why are important questions in understanding the regional diversity of Roman Britain They are addressed by this volume which details the archaeology of the Roman period for each of the modern counties of the region written by local experts who are or have been responsible for the management and exploration of their respective counties These are placed alongside more thematic takes on elements of Roman culture including the Roman Army pottery coins and religion Lastly an overview is taken of the important transitional period of the fifth and sixth centuries Each paper provides both a developed review of the existing state of knowledge and understanding of the key characteristics of the subject area and details a set of research objectives for the future immediate and long term that will contribute to our evolving understanding of Roman Britain This is the third volume in a series The Making of the West Midlands that explores the archaeology of the English west midlands region from the Lower Palaeolithic onwards
