Hohokam Bones:

Hohokam Bones [electronic Resource] Peter S. Dillard,2004 Hohokam Bones Peter S. Dillard,2004 When a thousand year old skeleton with an arrowhead lodged in the back of its skull is uncovered near Tucson smart and sexy archaeologist Emily Harken is called to the scene and becomes obsessed with the ancient murder Soon she meets Kokopelli a shadowy figure from her past who cannot remember his own Together they unravel the ultimate fate of the Hohokam a pre Columbian tribe that mysteriously vanished around 1450 and discover clues pointing to a vicious killer whose next victims may very well be the investigators themselves Hohokam Bones combines elements of detective fiction and suspense with Native American spirituality of the Sonoran Desert It introduces a pair of sleuthing love making and engaging crime solvers

Excavations at Snaketown Harold S. Gladwin,Emil W. Haury,E. B. Sayles,Nora Gladwin,2022-04-05 Gladwin accomplished from the 1920 s on a series of fundamentally important studies of the prehistoric cultures of the region from Texas to California None of these surveys or excavations was more important than the excavation of Snaketown in the southern Arizona desert It provided a wealth of details for a major prehistoric culture the Hohokam which previously had been scarcely recognized It dislodged many long held dogmas of Southwestern archaeology and provided the basis for a major reorientation in thinking about the nature of the prehistoric occupations of Arizona and adjacent states This volume has remained indispensable for its detailed reporting of house remains ball courts canals cremations pottery carved stone and other artifacts Science The reprint will come as a blessing to many archaeologists who have sought in vain to obtain a copy of the original volume It now stands as a body of data easily accessible to all workers and we look forward to a new phase of synthesis of Hohokam archaeology American Antiquity Excavations at Snaketown Harold Sterling Gladwin,1938

Huckell, 1995 While it was once believed that agriculture and pottery developed concurrently in prehistoric societies modern research has concluded that agriculture preceded pottery making since a sedentary life with greater food production led to both the need and time to create storage containers Bruce Huckell has been at the forefront of a movement in Arizona archaeology that has greatly modified our understanding of the transition from the Archaic to the agricultural periods in the Southwest Work done by Huckell and others at Matty Canyon has produced the most detailed account available of a Late Archaic village and has been extremely influential in suggesting that the cultivation of maize predated the appearance of pottery. Of Marshes and Maize presents archaeological information obtained from small scale investigations at two deeply buried preceramic sites in the Cienega Creek Basin. Its report on excavations at the Donaldson Site and at Los Ojitos offers a thorough description of archaeological features and artifacts floral and faunal remains and their geological and chronological contexts. From this data the author concludes that a major shift toward a sedentary lifeway dependent on maize agriculture had already occurred by Late Archaic times c 500 to 800 B C demonstrating that previous research on late preceramic sites in this region has provided an inadequate picture of the period. This monograph represents the first full presentation in the literature of an important set of data that is well known among researchers but has thus far not been easily accessible. It is a classic example of the use of fragmentary evidence in well dated contexts to introduce new ideas and will stand not only as an important record of the evidence but also as the primary reference for this significant new interpretation of the late Archaic and the introduction of agriculture into the Southwest. Religion in the Prehispanic Southwest Todd L.

VanPool, Christine S. VanPool, David A. Phillips Jr., 2007-01-19 Religion mattered to the prehistoric Southwestern people just as it matters to their descendents today. Examining the role of religion can help to explain architecture pottery agriculture even commerce. But archaeologists have only recently developed the theoretical and methodological tools with which to study this topic. Religion in the Prehispanic Southwest marks the first book length study of prehistoric religion in the region. Drawing on a rich array of empirical approaches the contributors show the importance of understanding beliefs and ritual for a range of time periods and southwestern societies. For professional and avocational archaeologists for religion scholars and students Religion in the Prehispanic Southwest represents an important contribution. Red Man's America Ruth Murray Underhill, 1971-12-15 Brief sketches of the origins backgrounds and customs of various North American tribes. Ancient Southwestern Mortuary Practices James T. Watson, Gordon F. M. Rakita, 2020-08-03 Ancient Southwestern Mortuary Practices chronicles the modal patterns diversity and change of ancient mortuary practices from across the US Southwest and northwest Mexico over four thousand years of Prehispanic occupation. The volume summarizes new methodological approaches and theoretical issues concerning the meaning and importance of burial practices to different peoples at different times throughout the ancient Greater Southwest. Chapters focus on normative mortuary patterns the range of variability of mortuary patterns how the contexts of burials reflect temporal shifts in ideology and the ways in which mortuary rituals behaviors and funerary treatments fulfill specific societal needs and reflect societal beliefs. Contributors analyze extensive datasets archived and accessible on the Digital Archaeological Record tDAR from various subregions structurally standardized and integrated with respect to biological and cultural data. Ancient Southwestern Mortuary Practices together with the full datasets preserved in tDAR is a rich resource for comparative research on mortuary ritual for indigenous
