Hollywood 1930s:

Hollywood and the Great Depression Iwan Morgan, 2016-10-31 Examines how Hollywood responded to and reflected the political and social changes that America experienced during the 1930s. In the popular imagination 1930s Hollywood was a dream factory producing escapist movies to distract the American people from the greatest economic crisis in their nation's history. But while many films of the period conform to this stereotype, there were a significant number that promoted a message either explicitly or implicitly in support of the political, social, and economic change broadly associated with President Franklin D. Roosevelt's New Deal programme. At the same time, Hollywood was in the forefront of challenging traditional gender roles both in terms of movie representations of women and the role of women within the studio system. With case studies of actors like Shirley Temple, Cary Grant, and Fred Astaire, as well as a selection of films that reflect politics and society in the Depression decade, this fascinating book examines how the challenges of the Great Depression impacted on Hollywood and how it responded to them. Topics covered include: How Hollywood offered positive representations of working women; Congressional investigations of big studio monopolization over movie distribution; How three different types of musical genres related in different ways to the Great Depression: the Warner Bros. Great Depression Musicals of 1933, the Astaire Rogers movies, and the MGM kid musicals of the late 1930s; The problems of independent production exemplified in King Vidor's Our Daily Bread; Cary Grant's success in developing a debonair screen persona amid Depression conditions; Contributors: Harvey G. Cohen, King's College London; Philip John Davies, British Library; David Eldridge, University of Hull; Peter William Evans, Queen Mary University of London; Mark Glancy, Queen Mary University of London; Ina Rae Hark, University of South Carolina; Iwan Morgan, University College London; Brian Neve, University of Bath; Ian Scott, University of Manchester; Anna Siomopoulos, Bentley University; J. E. Smyth, University of Warwick; Melvyn Stokes, University College London; Mark Wheeler, London Metropolitan University. Class Struggle in Hollywood, 1930-1950 Gerald Horne, 2001-02-15 Publisher: Fact Sheet. This engrossing book probes the motives and actions of all the players in the Conference of Studio Unions Strike in 1946, tracing the far-reaching consequences of this strike, the ensuing lockout, to the subsequent fury of Red-baiting, the encroachment of organized crime in Hollywood. The 1930s Douglas Baldwin, Patricia L. Baldwin, 2000 Highlights the important people and events of the 1930s such as the politicians, the disasters, the entertainment, and the world events. Decoding the Movies Prof. Richard Maltby, 2021-03-15 This book decodes 1930s Hollywood movies and explains why they looked and behaved in the way they did. Organized through a series of related case studies, the book exposes Classical Hollywood movies to a detailed analysis of their historical, industrial, and cultural contexts. In the process, it utilizes industry data, aesthetic analysis, and the insights of New Cinema History to explain why and how these movies assumed their familiar forms. The book represents the summation of Richard Maltby's four decades of scholarship in the field of Hollywood cinema. The essays presented here share an assumption that has increasingly informed the author's critical method over the years: that any

Hollywood's Others Katherine Fusco,2025-09-02 We tend to think about movie stars as either glamorous or relatable But in the 1920s and 1930s when the Hollywood star system was taking shape a number of unusual stars appeared on the silver screen representing groups from which the American mainstream typically sought to avert its eyes What did it mean for a white entertainment columnist to empathize with an ambiguously gendered Black child star Or for boys to idolize Lon Chaney famous for portraying characters with disabilities Hollywood s Others explores the affective ties between white non disabled audiences and the fascinatingly different stars with whom they identified but only up to a point Katherine Fusco argues that stardom in this era at once offered ways for viewers to connect across group boundaries while also policing the limits of empathy Examining fan magazines alongside film performances she traces the intense audience attachment to atypical celebrities and the ways the film industry sought to manage it Fusco considers Shirley Temple's career in light of child labor laws and changing notions of childhood shows how white viewers responded to Black music in depictions of the antebellum South and analyzes the gender politics of conspiracy theories around celebrity suicides Shedding light on marginalized stardoms and the anxieties they provoked Hollywood's Others challenges common notions about film's capacity to build empathy

American Cinema of the 1930s Ina Rae Hark, 2007-06-21 Probably no decade saw as many changes in the Hollywood film industry and its product as the 1930s did At the beginning of the decade the industry was still struggling with the transition to talking pictures Gangster films and naughty comedies starring Mae West were popular in urban areas but aroused threats of censorship in the heartland Whether the film business could survive the economic effects of the Crash was up in the air By 1939 popularly called Hollywood's Greatest Year films like Gone With the Wind and The Wizard of Oz used both color and sound to spectacular effect and remain American icons today The mature oligopoly that was the studio system had not only weathered the Depression and become part of mainstream culture through the establishment and enforcement of the Production Code it was a well oiled vertically integrated industrial powerhouse The ten original essays in American Cinema of the 1930s focus on sixty diverse films of the decade including Dracula The Public Enemy Trouble in Paradise 42nd Street King Kong Imitation of Life The Adventures of Robin Hood Swing Time Angels with Dirty Faces Nothing Sacred Jezebel Mr Smith Goes to Washington and Stagecoach
