Hollywood In Transition:

Hollywood in Transition Richard Dyer MacCann, 1977-07-15 American Cinema's Transitional Era Charlie Keil, Shelley Stamp, 2004-07-12 This transitional era covered the years 1908-1917 witnessed profound changes in the structure of the motion picture industry in the US involving film genre, film form, filmmaking practices, the emergence of the studio system. The pattern which emerged dominated the industry for decades to come. Transition and Transformation Bo Florin, 2012-12-24 Victor Sjöström 1879-1960 or Victor Seastrom as he was known during his Hollywood career was undoubtedly one of the most renowned silent film directors. Focusing on his masterpieces such as The Scarlet Letter and The Wind but also including films he had made in Sweden before moving to Hollywood as well as film fragments and films considered lost. Florin analyses Sjöström's austere and naturalistic style and the transformations it underwent during his Hollywood years. The Voice of Technology Lilya Kaganovsky, 2018-02-13 A deeply researched exploration of the technology, aesthetics and politics of Soviet film during the transition from silent to sound. As cinema industries around the globe adjusted to the introduction of synch sound technology, the Soviet Union was also shifting culturally, politically and ideologically from the heterogeneous film industry of the 1920s to the centralized industry of the 1930s and from the avant-garde to Socialist Realism. In The Voice of Technology: Soviet Cinema's Transition to Sound 1928-1935 Lilya Kaganovsky explores the history, practice, technology, ideology, aesthetics and politics of the transition to sound within the context of larger issues in Soviet media history. Industrialization and centralization of the cinema industry greatly altered the way movies in the Soviet Union were made while the introduction of sound radically altered the way these movies were received. Kaganovsky argues that the coming of sound changed the Soviet cinema industry by making audible for the first time the voice of State power directly addressing the Soviet viewer. By exploring numerous examples of films from this transitional period, Kaganovsky demonstrates the importance of the new technology of sound in producing and imposing the Soviet Voice. Kaganovsky's research is impeccable. Not only does she reference virtually all English language writing on her subject, she also has combed the archives, unearthing personal stories, government records, filmmakers' notes, press reviews from the period and other previously untranslated documents. CineMontage Free and Easy? Sean Griffin, 2017-05-25 A History of the American Musical narrates the evolution of the film musical genre, discussing its influences and how it has come to be defined. The first text on this subject for over two decades, it employs the very latest concepts and research. The most up-to-date text on the subject with uniquely comprehensive coverage and employing the very latest concepts and research. Surveys centuries of music history from the music and dance of Native Americans to contemporary music performance in streaming media. Examines the different ways the film musical genre has been defined, what gets counted as a musical, why and who gets to make that decision. The text is written in an accessible manner for general cinema and musical theatre buffs whilst retaining theoretical rigour in research. Describes the contributions made to the genre by marginalized or subordinated identity groups who have helped invent and shape the musical

Transition and Transformation Bo Florin, 2013 In 1923 Victor Sjöström 1879-1960 got an offer from Goldwyn Pictures to come to Hollywood This was nothing unusual for a successful European director Metro's bringing them in by carload as Photoplay stated in 1926 At the time Sjöström was Sweden's most renowned director who had become world famous for his austere and naturalistic film style Sjöström stayed in Hollywood for seven years and made nine films What happened during those years to the characteristic style that he had developed in Sweden How was it transformed by Hollywood Did he maintain any of his stylistic particularities from the Swedish period How were his Hollywood films received by the American and Swedish critics This portrayal of a European in Hollywood reveals how Sjöström in adapting to the new production system integrated and developed various stylistic elements from the Swedish years in a radically different context Transition and Transformation is the first book-length study dedicated to the films of Victor Sjöström made in Hollywood which also nuances the picture of the American production system

Butters,2002 In early twentieth century motion picture houses offensive stereotypes of African Americans were as predictable as they were prevalent Watermelon eating chicken thievery savages with uncontrollable appetites Sambo and Zip Coon were all representations associated with African American people Most of these caricatures were rendered by whites in blackface Few people realize that from 1915 through 1929 a number of African American film directors worked diligently to counter such racist definitions of black manhood found in films like D W Griffith's The Birth of a Nation the 1915 epic that glorified the Ku Klux Klan In the wake of the film's phenomenal success African American filmmakers sought to defend and redefine black manhood through motion pictures Gerald Butters's comprehensive study of the African American cinematic vision in silent film concentrates on works largely ignored by most contemporary film scholars African American produced and directed films and white independent productions of all black features Using these race movies to explore the construction of masculine identity and the use of race in popular culture he separates cinematic myth from historical reality the myth of the Euro American controlled cinematic portrayal of black men versus the actual black male experience Through intense archival research Butters reconstructs many lost films expanding the discussion of race and representation beyond the debate about good and bad imagery to explore the construction of masculine identity and the use of race as device in the context of Western popular culture He particularly examines the filmmaking of Oscar Micheaux the most prolific and controversial of all African American silent film directors and creator of the recently rediscovered Within Our Gates the legendary film that exposed a virtual litany of white abuses toward blacks Black Manhood on the Silent Screen is unique in that it takes contemporary and original film theory applies it to the distinctive body of African American independent films in the silent era and relates the meaning of these films to larger political social and intellectual events in American society By showing how both white and black men have defined their own sense of manhood through cinema it examines the intersection of race and gender in the movies and offers a deft interweaving of film theory American history and film history
