and garments is threatening two of Fiji's key industries. At the same time other opportunities are emerging. Labour migration is growing in importance and Pacific governments are calling for more access to Australia's labour market. Fiji has joined Samoa, Tonga, Tuvalu and Kiribati as a remittance economy with thousands of its citizens working overseas. Meantime Papua New Guinea and Solomon Islands grapple with an older kind of globalisation in which overseas companies exploit mineral and forest resources. The Pacific Islands confront unique problems of governance in this era of globalisation. The modern democratic state often fits awkwardly with traditional ways of doing politics in that part of the world. Just as often politicians in the Pacific exploit tradition or invent it to serve modern political purposes. The contributors to this volume examine Pacific globalisation and governance from a wide range of perspectives. They come from Papua New Guinea, Solomon Islands, Hawaii, the Federated States of Micronesia, Samoa, Fiji, New Zealand and Jamaica, as well as Australia. Publisher's description

Marine Environmental Governance Erika Techera, 2013-03-01. Marine Environmental Governance: From International Law to Local Practice considers the relationship between international environmental law and community based management of marine areas. Focusing on small island states in which indigenous populations have to a large extent continued to maintain traditional lifestyles, this book takes up the question of how indigenous customary law and state based legislation can be reconciled in the implementation of international environmental law. Including a range of case studies as well as detailed comparative analysis, it pursues an interdisciplinary approach to legal pluralism in practice that will be of considerable interest to environmental lawyers, legal anthropologists, conservation biologists and those working in the area of community based conservation.

Democracy, State Capacity and the Governance of COVID-19 in Asia-Oceania Aurel Croissant, Olli Hellmann, 2023-04-07. This book examines the public health responses to the COVID 19 pandemic in the Asia Oceania region and their implications for democratic backsliding in the period January 2020 to mid 2021. The contributions discuss three key questions: How did political institutions in Asia Oceania create incentives for effective public health responses to the COVID 19 outbreak? How did state capacities enhance governments' ability to implement public health responses? How have governance responses affected the democratic quality of political institutions and processes? Together the analyses reveal the extent to which institutions prompted an effective public health response and highlights that a high capacity state was not a necessary condition for containing the spread of COVID 19 during the early phase of the pandemic. By combining quantitative and qualitative analyses, the volume also shows that the effect of the COVID 19 pandemic on the quality of democratic institutions has been uneven across Asia Oceania. Guided by a comprehensive theoretical framework, this will be an invaluable resource for scholars and students of political science, policy studies, public health and Asian studies.

Government and Public Policy in the Pacific Islands Graham Hassall, 2020-11-11. This book is a comparative study of government and public policy in the twenty small states of the Pacific Islands, examining the often tense societal interactions over competing conceptions of public sector institutions and authority, rule making and policy processes.
