

0 Based on agreements with national governments and energy authorities, consistent with Nationally Determined Contributions, an ETM is established for a given country, with a target of transitioning a large amount of carbon-intensive power, e.g. ~50% of current coal-fired capacity by 2035

Investors

Long-term investors with low cost of funds, e.g. developed country central governments, national development finance institutions, and/or multilateral banks

1 Investors invest in the ETM

2 Multilateral bank oversees the ETM and ensures the ETM's adherence to agreed energy transition plan

4 CRF owns carbon-intensive asset and continues operations until agreed decommissioning date. CRF uses proceeds from operations to repay investors

5 CEF provides finance, technology assistance and know-how to host country to accelerate renewables, storage, grid upgrades, etc.

6 ETM investors receive returns from both CRF and CEF. CEF and CRF cashflows can be enhanced to achieve faster and more just transition:

- Carbon credits
- Diversion of fossil fuel subsidies
- Energy surcharge
- Performance payments for achieving specific environmental and/or social outcomes

3 Carbon-intensive power asset owner contributes asset in return for cash and equity from ETM. Cash can be used for just transition and CEF investments in renewables, etc.

Turkey the United Kingdom the United States and Latin American countries Alternative Paths to Public Financial Management and Public Sector Reform Sokbunthoeun So, Michael Woolcock, Leah April, Caroline Hughes, 2018-08-31

Reforming public sector organizations their structures policies processes and practices is notoriously difficult in rich and poor countries alike Even in the most favorable of circumstances the scale and complexity of the tasks to be undertaken are enormous requiring levels of coordination and collaboration that may be without precedent for those involved Entirely new skills may need to be acquired by tens of thousands of people Compounding these logistical challenges is the pervasive reality that circumstances often are not favorable to large scale reform Whether a country is rich or poor the choice is not whether but how to reform the public sector how optimal design characteristics robust political support and enhanced organizational capability to implement and adapt will be forged over time This edited volume helps address the how question It brings together reform experiences in public financial management and the public sector more broadly from eight country cases in East Asia Cambodia Indonesia Lao People s Democratic Republic Malaysia Myanmar Papua New Guinea Thailand and Vietnam These countries are at different stages of reform most of the reform efforts would qualify as successes while some had mixed outcomes and others could be considered failures The focus of each chapter is less on formally demonstrating success or not of specific reform but on documenting how reformers maneuvered within different country contexts to achieve specific outcomes Despite the great difficulty in reforming the public sector decision makers can draw renewed energy and inspiration learning from those countries sectors and subnational spaces where substantive not merely cosmetic change has been achieved and they can identify what pitfalls to avoid Public Financial Management and Its Emerging Architecture Mr. M.
