Killing Time Scott C. Martin, 2012-01-12 Scott C Martin examines leisure as a contested cultural space in which nineteenth century Americans articulated and developed ideas about ethnicity class gender and community This new perspective demonstrates how leisure and sociability mediated the transition from an agricultural to an industrial society Martin argues persuasively that southwestern Pennsylvanians used leisure activities to create identities and define values in a society being transformed by market expansion The transportation revolution brought new commercial entertainments and recreational opportunities but also fragmented and privatized customary patterns of communal leisure By using leisure as a window on the rapid changes sweeping through the region Martin shows how southwestern Pennsylvanians used voluntary associations private parties and public gatherings to construct social identities better suited to their altered circumstances The prosperous middle class devised amusements to distinguish them from workers who in turn resisted reformers attempts to constrain their use of free time Ethnic and racial minorities used holiday observances and traditional celebrations to define their place in American society while women tested the boundaries of the domestic sphere through participation in church fairs commercial recreation and other leisure activities This study illuminates the cultural history of the region and offers broader insights into perceptions of free time leisure and community in antebellum America

The Literary Voices of Winnifred Eaton Jean Lee Cole, 2002 Winnifred Eaton better known under her Japanese pseudonym Onoto Watanna was of English and Chinese heritage but born and raised in Canada She published over a dozen novels and hundreds of short stories magazine articles and screenplays during the first half of the twentieth century Her romances featuring Japanese and Eurasian heroines sold widely However by the time of her death in 1954 most of her books were out of print Winnifred unlike her sister the better known writer Edith Eaton has been a troubling figure for Asian Americanists She attempted to disguise her ethnic heritage writing under a Japanese pen name and in legal documents she usually claimed a white racial identity Scholars have noted her use of Orientalist stereotypes in her novels and even though she depicted a broad range of non Asian characters such as Irish maids and cowboys her portrayals often relied on the accepted stereotypes of the day Rather than dismiss her characterizations as evasions of the topics that readers today wish she had explored Jean Lee Cole asks why Winnifred Eaton may have chosen the subjects she did Cole shows that the many voices Eaton adopted reveal her deep Maid as Muse Aife Murray,2009 A startlingly original work establishing the impact of domestic servants on the life and writings of Emily Dickinson Never Done Susan Strasser,2000-09 The author traces the transformation of American housework from the eighteenth century chores to the present with attention to the impact of the industrial revolution domestic service women's entry into the workforce and the influences of commercial processes and advertising Pressed for Time Judy Wajcman,2016-07-11 In Pressed for Time Judy Wajcman explains why we immediately interpret our experiences with digital technology as inexorably accelerating everyday life She argues that we are not mere hostages to communication devices and the sense of always being rushed is the result of the priorities and parameters we ourselves set rather than the machines that help us set them Jacket The Body in Late-Capitalist USA Donald M. The Female Economy Wendy Gamber,1997

The Female Economy explores that lost world of women s dominance showing how independent often ambitious businesswomen and the sometimes imperious consumers they served gradually vanished from the scene as custom production gave way to a largely unskilled modern garment industry controlled by men Wendy Gamber helps overturn the portrait of wage earning women as docile souls who would find fulfillment only in marriage and motherhood
