Prior to the commencement of the Howard government, the Hawke-Keating government began to move away from Keynesian macro-economic management strategies, towards managing unemployment through the individual (Harris 2001, p. 18). The Howard government further extended trends begun in Keating government policy, with an increasing focus on moral elements and less on broader social values (Harris 2001, p. 18). Under the Keating Labor government the long-term unemployed were under 'reciprocal obligation' to accept any reasonable offer of employment or placement in a paid job program by the government (Harris 2001, p. 18). Rather than continuing 'reciprocal obligation', the Howard government introduced the concept of 'mutual obligation' and made significant changes in policy direction with reforms based on neo-liberal values (Burgess, Mitchell, O'Brien & Watts 2012, p. 178).

Howard government policy saw the introduction of 'Work for the Dole' which meant that a compulsory six month work placement could be conditional for the entitlement of benefits (Harris 2001, p. 18). Other requirements included attending training programs, attending all interviews and maintaining entries in a job-seeker's diary and could also include voluntary work, work for the dole, job search training or relocation (Harris 2001, p. 18). Carney (2006, p. 34) compares optimistic activation (social investment) with paternalistic optimism (placing pressure on individuals to change).

Governing Change Keating To Howard:

Governing Change Carol Johnson, 2007 Governing Change Carol Johnson, 2000 Carol Johnson's Governing Change is a monograph covering political trends in Australia over the past decade. This new title in the UQP Australian Studies series complements Howard's Agenda. It investigates the changing style of government and politics in the final years of the twentieth century. Timed to coincide with introduction of GST Conceptualisation of Integration Abdi Hersi, 2018-05-25 This book identifies and examines the meanings of integration from the perspective of Australian Muslims through analysis of focus group discussions and in depth interviews in the South East Queensland region. It provides a comprehensive overview of Muslim conceptualisation of integration and the author explores the various meanings Muslims ascribe to it such as participation, belonging and contributing to the wider society. By gaining an understanding of how Muslims define integration, this research can help policy makers, academics and settlement service providers to appreciate how culture and faith influence the meanings diverse groups give to certain accepted terms. It will be of interest to scholars and students in the fields of migration, mobility, integration and social cohesion The A to Z of Australia James C. Docherty, 2010-04-01 The last continent to be claimed by Europeans, Australia began to be settled by the British in 1788 in the form of a jail for its convicts. While British culture has had the largest influence on the country and its presence can be seen everywhere, the British were not Australia's original populace. The first inhabitants of Australia, the Aborigines, are believed to have migrated from Southeast Asia into northern Australia as early as 60,000 years ago. This distinctive blend of vastly different cultures contributed to the ease with which Australia has become one of the world's most successful immigrant nations. The A to Z of Australia relates the history of this unique and beautiful land which is home to an amazing range of flora and fauna, a climate that ranges from tropical forests to arid deserts and the largest single collection of coral reefs and islands in the world. Through a detailed chronology, an introduction, appendixes, a bibliography and cross-referenced dictionary entries on some of the more significant persons, places and events, institutions and organizations and political, economic, social, cultural and religious facets, author James Docherty provides a much needed single volume reference on Australia from its most unpromising of beginnings as a British jail to the liberal, tolerant democracy it is today Asylum Seekers Linda Briskman, Alperhan Babacan, 2009-05-27 Governing Asian International Mobility in Australia Xianlin Song, Greg McCarthy, 2019-08-12 This book examines the governance of Asian student and academic mobility which has transformed the higher education landscape. While campuses are experiencing an unprecedented level of diversity, knowledge creation remains explicitly Eurocentric and dominated by the Global North. The authors advocate for a new educational paradigm that takes into account the transcultural flow of knowledge on campus as a public good, capitalises on Asian students and academics' multilingual competencies and offers them equal access to creating quality orientated education. The book argues that international higher education must be grounded in both a plurality of knowledges and the ethics of cognitive justice and that the governing policies should facilitate the higher education sector to build a platform of internationalising affect and effect on campus
