Exploring Partnership Governance in Global Health National Academies of Sciences, Engineering, and Medicine, Health and Medicine Division, Board on Global Health, Forum on Public Health "Private Partnerships for Global Health and Safety, 2018-06-11 Solving the world's health challenges requires multidisciplinary collaborations that bring together the talents experiences resources and ideas from multiple sectors These collaborations in global health frequently occur through public private partnerships PPPs in which public and private parties share risks responsibilities and decision making processes with the objective of collectively and more effectively addressing a common goal. However, these numerous stakeholders bring varying strengths and resources to global health partnerships but they also bring their own organizational cultures, regulations, and expectations. Managing partnerships among them is complex and requires intentional and thoughtful governance. Over the last several decades, as the number of interested stakeholders, resources invested, and initiatives launched within the global health field has grown, effective governance of global health PPPs has become increasingly critical. To explore the role of governance in PPPs for global health, the Forum on Public-Private Partnerships for Global Health and Safety convened a workshop. Participants explored best practices, common challenges, and lessons learned in the varying approaches to partnership governance. They also highlighted key issues in the governance of PPPs for global health with the goal of increasing their effectiveness in improving health outcomes. This publication summarizes the presentations and discussions from the workshop.

Cultural Influences on Public-Private Partnerships in Global Governance Adam B. Masters, 2018-09-04. This book explores how professional and organisational cultures influence global public-private partnerships, which form a key element of global governance. Using case studies of the partnerships of three international government organisations—the International Telecommunication Union, Interpol, and the International Centre for the Study of the Preservation and Restoration of Cultural Property—it illustrates how partnerships are formed and operate in accordance with the accepted cultural beliefs and values associated with both profession and organisation. In brief, engineers create partnerships they are comfortable with, which are different in form and operation to those of police, which also differ from those of the conservator. This book will appeal to scholars of international relations, global governance, organisational studies, and public administration. It also conveys lessons for professionals at the international level in international government organisations, business, and civil society who engage in or want to engage in global public-private partnerships.
