Quality Assurance and Certification in Ecotourism Rosemary Black, Alice Crabtree, 2007

Genuine ecotourism can have many positive impacts particularly the conservation of biodiversity and cultural heritage and the creation of economic opportunities for local communities. While promoting these it aims to eliminate negative impacts such as environmental degradation, cultural commoditisation and playground effects. Unfortunately the concept is broadly misunderstood and its true definition is widely debated. It is often used as a marketing tool with some operators taking advantage of the ecotourism label to attract more business while behaving in environmentally irresponsible ways. This book considers the important topic of quality control and accreditation in ecotourism describing the mechanisms that can be implemented to ensure quality in all aspects of the industry namely protected areas, businesses, products and tour guides.

The New Engineering Contract Arthur McInnis, 2001

The introduction of the New Engineering Contract (NEC) encourages a systematic approach to contracting which is multidisciplinary in nature and fully interlocked in form. The NEC is intended by its supporters to be more flexible and easier to use than any current leading traditional standard forms of contract. It is believed that these features reduce adversariality and disputes. The NEC seeks to achieve this aim primarily through cooperative management techniques and incentives built into the NEC's procedures. This commentary analyses and evaluates these and related claims of innovation. The New Engineering Contract: A legal commentary examines the background to the NEC, its design objectives, structure, procedures and likely judicial interpretation to determine whether it improves upon the traditional standard forms of contract. Special attention is given in the commentary to the development and the significance of the principles underlying preparation of the NEC as well as the arguments in favour of and against them. Throughout the detailed commentary upon the NEC clauses, comparisons to the traditional forms are also made to highlight unique features and principles of general application. The conclusion reached is that the NEC does make a significant contribution to the development of standard forms of contract, addresses many of their shortcomings and offers one of the best models for their future development, direction and design. The commentary draws upon the body of the project management literature and legal analysis to support its conclusions. The New Engineering Contract: A legal commentary will be essential reading for lawyers, barristers and solicitors as well as engineers and project managers.

Guide to Quality Management Systems for the Food Industry Ralph Early, 2012-12-06

Whenever I step into an aeroplane I cannot avoid considering the risks associated with flying. Thoughts of mechanical failure, pilot error and terrorist action fill my mind. I try to reassure myself with statistics which tell me there is greater chance of injury crossing the road The moment the plane takes off I am resigned to my fate placing faith in pilots who are highly qualified and superbly trained for the task of delivering me safely to my destination To be a passenger in an aeroplane is to express faith in the systems used by the airline It is to express a faith in the quality of the airline's organisation and the people who work within it The same is true of surgery Thoughts of mortality are difficult to avoid when facing the surgeon's knife However faith in the surgeon's training and skill faith in the anaesthetist and theatre technicians faith in the efficient resources and quality of the hospital all help to convince that there is little need to worry Apart from flying and surgery there are many facets of life which entail risk but knowing the risks we willingly place our confidence in others to deliver us safely In the consumption of food however few of us consider the risks Everyday if we are fortunate we eat food Food sustains and gives us pleasure Food supports our social interactions disciplines to maintain their principal strengths and combining them in a pragmatic way on the basis of an integrated architecture This book goes beyond descriptions of management disciplines found elsewhere in its treatment of the architecture integration necessary to interlink product process and resources data Only with this connectedness can the interoperation of the management essentials yield maximum efficiency and effectiveness Commercial Aircraft Projects Managing the Development of Highly Complex Products proposes an integrated architecture and details step by step how it can be used for the management of commercial aircraft development projects The findings can also be applied to other industrial sectors that produce complex hardware based on design inputs      Advanced Project Management Frederick Harrison, Dennis Lock, 2017-03-02 When Advanced Project Management first appeared it quickly acquired a reputation for excellence on both sides of the Atlantic as a book that successfully bridges the gap between introductory texts on project management and specialist works on professional practice Its aim is twofold to provide a guide for managers engineers accountants and others involved in project work and a reference for advanced students of project and construction management This fourth edition of the book has been heavily revised with substantial material to reflect the changes in project management The following topics are either new to the book or have been given greater emphasis Project definition and appraisal Procurement and the supply chain Concurrent engineering Cost and management accounting Quality management More detailed explanations of critical path analysis now predominantly using the precedence system Increased treatment of resource scheduling Planning with multiple calendars Planning within fixed time constraints using crashing and fast tracking methods Standard networks modules and templates Risk management
