Grabroots Tyranny

Richard Frost

Grabroots Tyranny:

The Key of Nostradamus Nancy Millikin Tubbs, 2013-01-31 In the sixteenth century a Frenchman named Michel Nostradamus wrote a collection of 1000 rhymed verses predicting future events After writing these verses Nostradamus scrambled them out of their correct order afraid of the repercussions his predictions might create during that time period while the Inquisition was at its height Since that time his verses have been translated into different languages many books have been written many attempts have been made to understand and interpret the meaning of the verses to correlate the verses with historical events and to determine if there is a key to unlocking the order in which the verses should be placed I can answer yes to the last there definitely is a key and this book explains it I have also attempted to explain the meaning of many of the verses although not by using the key as it turned out to be simpler to explain the verses without it In order for the key to work there needed to be 1000 verses but there are so many that it can become a bit of an information overload I have used only those verses that were best able to explain the overall story without overloading the amount of information available There have been a lot of books written about Nostradamus and his verses This is not just one more book along the same lines You won't find most of these interpretations in any other book And you won't find the key anywhere else This book has been 25 years in the writing

Ten Thousand Years of Tyranny Richard Frost, 2020-06 Ten thousand years of tyranny is a polemic as uncompromising as Rousseau or Marx It rejects one central idea of Darwin's theory ie that life evolves in an environment of scarce resources and claims that the world has always been abundant of and for life Given this Frost claims life is though violent essentially benign Humanity freed from the whip of scarcity would be free to live in harmony with itself and the wider world without sin were it not for the corruptions arising from differential social power The author aged about 20 months with his pregnant mother Selina taken in about September 1938 in North End Essex UK
