Grains In China:

Grains in China Zhang-Yue Zhou, Wei-Ming Tian, 2017-11-30 This book addresses the dynamics of China's grain production, consumption and trade with a particular emphasis on China's demand for feedgrain vis à vis its demand for foodgrain and the likely implications of this on the international grain trade given that China is now a member of the WTO. The book provides the reader with insight into the latest developments in China's foodgrain and feedgrain consumption and draws attention to the rising importance of feedgrain and the relative decline in importance of foodgrain in the overall Chinese grain economy. It also offers deliberations on many important issues concerning China's grains that are currently hotly debated. The book can be used as a valuable reference by government officials, grain traders, food market analysts, researchers and university students who are interested in China's food issues in general and foodgrain and feedgrain issues in particular.

Food Grain Procurement and Consumption in China Kenneth R. Walker, 2010-06-24 This book analyses how the Chinese Government attempted to supply its vast rapidly growing population with adequate grain 1953-1980.

China's Grain Production And Trade Colin A. Carter, 2019-04-10 China with over 20 percent of the earth's population is both the world's largest producer and largest consumer of cereal grains. As a consequence, the supply and demand of grain in China will have a major impact on the world food trade. In this comprehensive study of China's grain production and trade, Colin A. Carter and Fu Ning Zhong trace the Future of China's Grain Market Frederick W. Crook, 1996 China's Grain Economy Liming Wang, John

Davis, 2019-06-03 This book was originally published in 2000. China is the largest developing country in the world and is still heavily based on agriculture. Currently, about 70 per cent of China's total of more than one billion people live in rural areas and about half of the total national labour force is involved in agricultural activities. It is clear that agriculture is the foundation for the development of the Chinese national economy. Within agriculture, the grain economy is the most important sector; indeed, it has been recognised as a treasure in managing the country by all past Chinese dynasties. Ensuring enough grain supply to meet the demands of such a huge population seems to be a long-term goal for the Chinese government, and this book explores whether China will be able to produce enough grain to keep pace with its population increases.

Cross-commodity Analysis of China's Grain Sector Hunter Colby, 2000 Grains for China's Arid Areas China International Famine Relief Commission, 1931 Agricultural Reforms and Grain Production in China Shujie

Yao, 2016-07-27 This book explains how policy changes affect farmers' production incentives and efficiency of resource allocation within and outside agriculture in modern China, paying particular attention to the effects of technical inputs on yield and efficiency of spatial crop production patterns. Drawing experiences of agricultural development in different periods after independence and employing two different quantitative techniques, it concludes that government's long-term tendency to undermine the role of agriculture, lack of state investment and the inconsistency of market reforms are three major threats.

to sustained grain production and agricultural growth in China China, 2001 Urban China The World Bank; Development Research Center of the State Council, 2014-07-29 In the last 30 years China's record economic growth lifted half a billion people out of poverty with rapid urbanization providing abundant labor cheap land and good infrastructure While China has avoided some of the common ills of urbanization strains are showing as inefficient land development leads to urban sprawl and ghost towns pollution threatens people's health and farmland and water resources are becoming scarce With China's urban population projected to rise to about one billion or close to 70 percent of the country's population by 2030 China's leaders are seeking a more coordinated urbanization process Urban China is a joint research report by a team from the World Bank and the Development Research Center of China's State Council which was established to address the challenges and opportunities of urbanization in China and to help China forge a new model of urbanization The report takes as its point of departure the conviction that China's urbanization can become more efficient inclusive and sustainable However it stresses that achieving this vision will require strong support from both government and the markets for policy reforms in a number of areas The report proposes six main areas for reform first amending land management institutions to foster more efficient land use denser cities modernized agriculture and more equitable wealth distribution second adjusting the hukou household registration system to increase labor mobility and provide urban migrant workers equal access to a common standard of public services third placing urban finances on a more sustainable footing while fostering financial discipline among local governments fourth improving urban planning to enhance connectivity and encourage scale and agglomeration economies fifth reducing environmental pressures through more efficient resource management and sixth improving governance at the local level CHINA: FOOD SECURITY AND AGRICULTURAL

GOING GLOBAL Han Jun, 2022-11-21 Through decades of efforts China has overall achieved self sufficiency in food supply which is the result of effective policies and measures adopted by the Chinese government This book focuses on China's food security strategy and agricultural going global strategy and goes into details on policies and measures for achieving domestic food security It specially analyzes status and development trend of China's corn industry since corn is the most sensitive grain variety that plays an important role as food feed and raw material for bioenergy It also studies overseas agricultural development potential for agricultural investment and cooperation globally It finally elaborates China's agricultural going global strategy with specific cases to evaluate policy effect in order to promote international cooperation in agriculture The conclusions are that as the world's most populated country China should rely on its domestic production to ensure food supply However with intensified constraints on resources and environment China should appropriately adjust its food security goals to ensure the basic self sufficiency of cereals and rely more on global markets for non cereal grain varieties Looking to the future China should establish a food security system that is efficient open and sustainable through profound reform to increase its domestic food productivity promote sustainable development of agriculture and expand international
